WRECKERS DERAIL CRACK STREAMLINER ON BRINK OF NEVADA RIVER; 19 KILLED

LUXURY PLANE HITS CRANE NEAR WATER AND CRACKS IN TWO

Six Americans, Including Eminent Yale Economist, James Harvey Rogers, Among Dead; Some Bodies Hurled From Ship and Others Crushed Inside; Craft on Flight From Miami

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 13.—(AP)—James Harvey Rogers, eminent Yale economist and five other Americans were among 14 persons killed today when a Pan-American plane on an east coast trip which began at Miami, Fla., struck a dock crane in Rio de Janeiro harbor.

Two passengers were rescued from the baby clipper as it buried its nose on the shore while the other half of the broken plane splashed into the water.

Gasoline burst from the plane's tanks and was sprayed on the water where it caught fire. The ship itself, however, did not burn.

The plane, gliding to a landing at dusk, was close to water when it crashed and as it broke in two, some bodies were thrown from the cabin to the ground. Other were crushed inside.

Mario Lyra, one of the two survivors, in an interview at her hospital bed, said:

"I could see the plane was about to crash because it began to come down very rapidly. There seemed to be some trouble with the motor. I tried to get my parachute but it was too late. We were dropping too fast. Then there was a crash. I remember nothing after that. I do not know whether they pulled me out of the plane or whether I fell out."

Some of the bodies that were quickly recovered were so battered and mangled that identification was difficult. Darkness made the search for others difficult.

American Killed.

Pan-American announced that the three American passengers killed were:

Robert Landman, 195 Broadway, New York city.

Professor Rogers, New Haven, Connecticut.

Henrie May Eddy, Gainesville, Florida.

Three of the four members of the crew who died also were Americans. They were:

Captain A. G. Person, pilot, of Miami, a veteran of 1,000,000 miles flown for Pan-American.

Captain George King, co-pilot, of Miami.

Russell Jenkins, radio operator.

The fourth member of the crew was the steward, Julio Trujillo.

The only persons of the 16 passengers and crew aboard who were saved were Oswaldo Hirth, a German engineer, who suffered a broken leg and shock, and Mario Lyra, a Brazilian, who was cut and bruised.

'HEART' BABY DIES OF PNEUMONIA AFTER BRAVE FIGHT

MANILA, Aug. 14.—(Monday.) (AP)—Baby Mary Heart Rafael, born just a week ago with her heart exposed on her chest, died today at 5:25 a. m. (4:25 p. m., Sunday, eastern standard time).

The infant had been in a critical condition because of bronchial pneumonia, and doctors had practically abandoned hope of saving her.

Since her birth, the baby had been the center of scientific observation, with medical men undecided whether she would be able to survive the rare malformation.

Her mother, Mrs. Esperanza Rafael, saw for the first time yesterday the exposed heart of the baby.

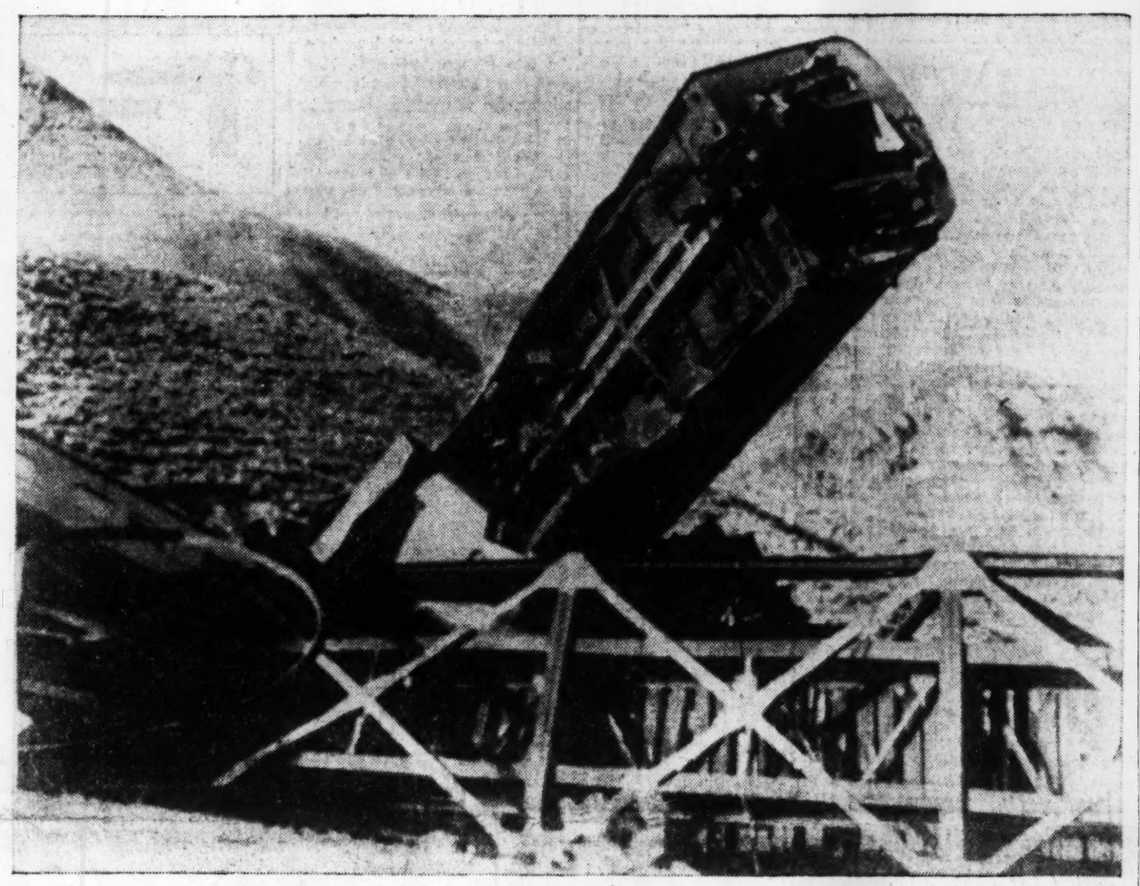

Escape Artist Atop Tower At Fair Threatens Jump

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(UP)—Russell Bradshaw, an escape artist at the World's Fair, attracted his largest crowd tonight when he perched atop the replica of Christ church tower in the fair's Merrie England exhibit for more than an hour, threatening to jump off.

He was persuaded to come down about 11:30 p. m. by police and firemen.

The grim result of a fiendishly-contrived scheme which derailed the speeding luxury train, "City of San Francisco," in the wild country of Nevada. Shown are several of the cars of the streamliner which crashed onto the crumpled steel bridge across the Humboldt river—tossing passengers around like screaming puppets. Railroad officials and a coroner's jury joined in attributing the disaster to sabotage and the discovery of two crowbars lead to the belief more than one participated.

'UNITED COURSE' SET BY FASCISTS

Ciano Back in Rome After 3-Day Talks With Hitler, Von Ribbentrop.

By The Associated Press.

The German-Italian conference at Salzburg ended yesterday after having agreed upon what authoritative Germans called a "united course of action" on all "urgent and less urgent" issues.

But the world was in the dark as to actual decisions reached on such vital questions as the future of Danzig and the problem of closer connections with Japan.

In Rome, where the foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, arrived to report to Premier Mussolini on his three-day conferences with German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbenthrop and Fuehrer Hitler, the Fascist press gave no inkling of the tone of the conversations.

The British press, however, took the view that there was no immediate danger of war.

Mother Dies After Surgeons Bring Triplets Into World

Caesarian Operation Performed; Babies Weigh Little Over 11 Pounds Altogether; Tiny Girl, the Smallest, Placed in Incubator.

Three lusty wails arose last night in the Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital nursery from the tiny throats of three one-day-old babies—much too young to know that their mother had given her life that they might live.

Mrs. Fred T. Allen, 28, of 208 McClellan street, died a few hours after giving birth to the triplets, two boys and a girl, Saturday afternoon.

Brought into the world by a Caeserian operation, the babies' combined weight was a little over 11 pounds. The girl, the smallest of the three, weighed 3 pounds 2 ounces at birth, and was put immediately into an incubator.

In spite of her smallness, she was said to be healthy and normal in every other respect. The boys, weighing 3 pounds 10 ounces and 4 pounds 5 ounces, required no special care, hospital attendants said.

The triplets were born about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and the mother seemed to be doing very well until complications set in a little later, hospital attendants said. She was given a blood transfusion, but died at 8:10 o'clock Saturday night.

The Allens had been married for several years, friends said, but have had no previous children. No names have as yet been selected for the babies.

Mrs. Allen's funeral will be conducted this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Colonial Hills Methodist church. Rev. Ralph W. Wood will officiate, and interment will be in College Park cemetery.

Bandit Robs Couple, Man Is Tied to Tree

An armed bandit early yesterday morning held up a man and woman in a parked auto on Manson road and escaped with $2.30 after roping the man to a tree.

Police said the victims were J. D. Buckner, of 544 Windsor street, S. W., and Miss Frances Staton, of 1253 Oak street, S. W. The bandit took $1.45 from the man's pocket after binding him and 85 cents from the woman's purse.

After the bandit disappeared, Miss Staton ran to a nearby fire station and called police. Buckner extricated himself and also telephoned police.

Boy's 'Death Screams' Lead Police to Scene of Old American Torture.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 13.—(AP)—An excited woman called police, told them to hurry because some parents are "beating their child nearly to death."

"The child is being beaten so hard that the blows and screams can be heard for a block," she said.

Speeding to the house designated, two officers were confronted by a perplexed mother, who told them:

"It was my child who was yelling. I was giving him his Saturday night bath and he didn't like it much."

FIFTY ARE INJURED AS 17 CARS PILE UP; 2 CROWBARS FOUND

Death Strikes $2,000,000 Train as It Speeds Across Desert Country With Many Passengers Asleep; Coroner's Jury Backs Up Railroad Officials' Accusation of Sabotage.

RENO, Nev., Aug. 13.—(AP)—A night of horror, in the lonely wastes of central Nevada, left at least 19 persons dead and nearly 50 injured today as a result of one of the most disastrous train wrecks in modern rail history—a wreck apparently maneuvered with diabolical intent.

The $2,000,000 "City of San Francisco" streamliner piled up with a tremendous roar when it struck misplaced rails which both a coroner's jury and railroad officials said had been moved "by a person or persons unknown."

A steel bridge was hurled into the Humboldt river; some of the cars on the 17-car de luxe train crashed 15 to 20 feet with it; other cars plunged 1,000 feet along the ties—to leave a picture which survivors said would never be erased.

Tales of stirring heroism were told by those who witnessed the rescue of scores trapped in the cars. There were 149 persons on the train, and Southern Pacific officials said 134 had been accounted for. They said the other 15 probably were uninjured and, hence, had not been reported.

The name of Dr. E. A. Betts, Pennsylvania State College professor, was on nearly all lips as the hero of the tragedy—but the train crew, stewards, stewardesses, quick-thinking passengers also won heartfelt praise. Dr. Betts, himself badly bruised, said "never have I seen a more courageous display of nerve and coolness . . ." His friends on the train were killed.

While rescue crews dug into wreckage of the luxurious "City of San Francisco," seeking more dead or injured, railway investigators said they found definite evidence the tracks had been tampered with, derailing the train.

An inquest, conducted by Coroner Roy S. Harris, of Eureka county, returned a verdict the victims "came to their deaths by train accident, and to the best of our belief and judgment the wreck was caused by a misplaced rail, misplaced by a person or persons unknown."

The derailment spread death,

1 OF 8 ESCAPED CONVICTS CAUGHT

Prisoner Who Fled Franklin Camp Apprehended in North Carolina.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

CARNESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 13.—Franklin county authorities today reported the capture at Greenville, N. C., of one of the eight long-term convicts who had escaped from the Franklin county prison camp at intervals since July 3.

Sheriff Tom Watson Andrews said he had been informed by the sheriff's office at Greenville that a negro, giving his name as John B. Hankerson, 21, had been apprehended in that city. No details of the capture were given. Hankerson informed the North Carolina authorities that he would waive extradition and return to the Carnesville camp.

Hankerson was serving a four-year term on a felony charge. He escaped from the Franklin county camp July 31, sawing his way out of the bunkhouse at night.

Seven other convicts who had made their escape during the last four weeks are still at large, among them being Forrest Ewing, a pal of Forrest Turner, noted jail-breaker and holdup man, who at present is serving time at Georgia's "Little Alcatraz" in Paulding county. Ewing was serving an 18-year sentence for holdup at the time of his escape.

Georgia Teacher for 6 Years Tells Why She Seeks Another Kind of Job

Miss Margaret Carter, of Edison, Scores State Public School System, Low Wages and Lack of Funds To Pay Those, Difference in Grade and High School Salaries.

(Editor's Note: On Sunday, August 11, Miss Margaret Carter, of Edison, a Georgia school teacher, put an ad in The Constitution in which she said that while she held an A. B. degree, she apparently was not very sensible because she had gone on teaching for six years instead of getting a job with regular pay. Following is her own story on the plight of the school teachers of this state.)

By MARGARET A. CARTER.

My idea was not to be sensational. I want nothing to do with publicity stunts. I had walked the town over and racked my brain to try to get something to do. I stood and considered my qualifications for any job except school teaching and found that I had few. Being disgusted with myself and circumstances, I walked into The Constitution building and wrote an ad.

Have you ever felt like you were choking? That is the way I have felt for the last number of years. I have not been able to express myself on any subject that related to the political upbuilding for the teachers with whom I was associated because of (the job losing) fear. Our hands as individuals have been tied because we have had no power as a whole.

Besides having our free speech squelched indirectly we are not assured .hat we will have a job even one year. Our contracts are not water-tight. We cannot do our best work with the assurance that we will be taken care of. We live with the fear that we will either lose our jobs or not get paid enough to make ends meet, especially if any teacher begins in the hole like I did. In six years I have not made what it took to send me to Wesleyan for four years. This does not encourage the best people to stay in the profession. Intelligent people want to grow and if they can't grow in the field of teaching they go forth to other work.

The great difference in the salary scale of high school and grade school teachers is unjust. I know that this condition exists because a few years back one had to have very little training to teach in the grades. Today we must have degrees, special training, patience and the wisdom of Solomon in dealing with both children and parents. We have no study halls and no off periods. We have to be mother, playmate, doctor, nurse and teacher. Yet we are not paid nearly as much as the high school teachers. This year the state was paying according to qualifications and experience. Some of the schools defeated the purpose of the whole movement by taking the amount received and giving each teacher, no matter what training or experience, the same salary—of course there was a difference in the grammar school and high school salaries. I know one grade teacher who received the maximum amount from the state, which was $80. This was supplemented locally with $5, while a high school teacher with no experience and no more training received even less from the state and yet was paid $100.

In most of the systems in the state and in all of the small schools there is no possibility to make any more after a number of years than you do the first year. This tends to make a teacher lose heart and the desire to progress. She knows her work, she feels like she earns her small salary and she won't do any more work than is necessary. If there was a chance for progress, her own conscience would not let her, or him, get in a rut. It is hard to foster a new idea because of lack of funds or fear of public opinion. Our free-thinking, progressive men and women lose their early enthusiasm and settle down to the worship of worn-out methods and the acceptance of meager salaries. I don't think teachers who have taught for 15 or 20 years in one school, having given their best to the cause, should be turned off with no hope for support in their old age.

We, as classroom teachers, must band ourselves together and right these wrongs. We owe it to ourselves and the children of Georgia.

It is the general assembly's responsibility to provide revenue for the operation of our public school systems. Any state with the resources Georgia has can afford a minimum seven-months school term, and through proper management should have nine months. Whatever she can afford, things have reached a sad state when our business arrangements cannot be made at least one or two years in advance. Economy is in order and no group knows any more about economy than the classroom teachers who have been compelled to practice it, but the damage done to the professional spirit of Georgia teachers through the collapse of our school program has far exceeded any economies that have been or may be effected. It ill behooves any of us to criticize, but surely the members of the general assembly will have enough foresight, and understanding, to realize the damaging effect present conditions are having upon Georgia teachers, and through them upon the lives of the children of our people. When this situation is fully realized I cannot conceive of the assembly failing to make provisions for schools far enough in advance to forestall the trying and disappointing situations which tend to carry our school system backward.

JAPAN TOPS U. S. IN SALES TO CHINA

HONGKONG, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Japan, with her trade following her flag in China, has displaced the United States as the lading exporter to China, according to figures published today by the Japanese-influenced Chinese customs service.

The figures report that Japan in the first four months of this year sent more goods to China than in any corresponding period for eight years. Japanese wares constituted one-third of all Chinese imports.

The United States, long the leader in sending goods into China, is placed in a poor second position, and Britain third and Germany fourth.

Total value of imports to China was given as 397,073,000 Chinese dollars (about $113,000,000). In the same period China exported 260,364,000 Chinese dollars (about $74,000,000), the British Empire buying 50 per cent, the United States 17 per cent, Japan 14 per cent and France nine per cent.

Of 16 China ports handling the trade covered in the report, 11 were Japanese occupied. Since May the Japanese have occupied one and blockaded all five of the remaining ports.

POLICE SAY GIRL'S KILLERS 'KNOWN'

Declare Same Pair Beat Wanda Last Spring.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 13.—(AP)—County Detective Lawrence Doran declared tonight Wanda Dworecki, clergyman's 18-year-old daughter, was killed a week ago by the same two men who last April beat her so badly she almost died.

The girl's lifeless body was discovered August 8 in a weed patch along a Camden "lovers lane," beaten and strangled.

She had recovered only a short time before from injuries inflicted by two men who she said abducted her last April, beat her, and threw her from a car 25 miles from home.

Doran declared the identity of the men was known and that an arrest is "imminent."

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 13.—(AP)—A 30-day shutdown of Texas oil fields appeared imminent tonight as Chairman Lon A. Smith, of the state railroad commission, announced he would approve such a step. Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson had said yesterday he favored a statewide closing.

The order closing wells in the nation's largest oil-producing state would be Texas' answer to attempts to cut the price of crude 20 per cent.

TROOPS WAIT BUGLE FOR HUGE WAR GAME

Guardsmen Join Regulars at Concentration Points in 450-Square-Mile Area.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 13. (AP)—A continuous procession of national guardsmen from New England, New York and New Jersey sped today to join 20,000 "regulars" for the nation's greatest peace-time war maneuvers.

Before nightfall, more than 11,000 newcomers had established camps at scattered points in the 450-square-mile area to be covered by the first army maneuvers.

An additional 21,000 guardsmen are expected tomorrow, completing the force.

The troops will embark Wednesday for two days of regimental maneuvers.

These will be followed by brigade maneuvers. Corps maneuvers are next on the schedule, culminating in a mimic war August 23-25, in which a "black army" of national guardsmen will meet a "blue army" of regulars.

The battle scheduled for the next four days might be termed a test of the modern fighting unit against the technique of the World War.

RIVERS-MILLER ROW MAY BE AIRED AT EXTRA SESSION

2 Legislators Indicate They May Raise Question of Who Is Controlling the State Road Program.

By The Associated Press.

Gubernatorial constrictions of Highway Department authority, high-lighted by an undeclared conflict between Governor Rivers and Highway Board Chairman W. L. Miller, brought speculation yesterday of possible legislative action in the forthcoming extra session.

At least two representatives—Herschel Lovett, Laurens county, administration critic, and W. J. Hinson, of Jeff Davis—have indicated they may raise the question of who is controlling the state's highway program and why.

Lovett, testifying before the house economy committee, charged the Governor was seeking to force the resignation of Chairman Miller by harassing him with restricting executive orders, while Hinson recently suggested legislative consideration of measures to prevent "unwarranted" executive interference in highway department affairs.

Rivers' Orders Cited.

All the executive orders were promulgated under the Governor's authority as director of the budget, on a plea he was seeking to conserve Highway Department funds so they would be available for possible legislative diversion.

Friends of Miller, however, professed to see significance in the orders, as an aftermath of an asserted unsuccessful attempt by the Governor to gain Miller's resignation from the Highway Board and his transfer to some other executive position.

The first order reduced personnel and slashed salaries, including Miller's. Subsequently the Governor ruled no contract for construction with state funds could be let without his approval, and finally extended the restrictions to include requirement for executive approval of all purchases in excess of $100.

Controversy Listed.

A reported plan to partition the board's authority still further with Miller allowed control only of 100 per cent federal fund work (railroad crossings) and public relations never materialized.

Miller openly has challenged Governor Rivers control only once. Several weeks ago he raised the question whether the executive had legal right to assume authority of the road board. Attorney General Ellis Arnall, to whom the query was addressed, declined, however, to render an opinion unless asked by the Governor. The latter ignored the issue.

NEW 'LIQUID COAL' SERVES FOR FUEL IN STANDARD AUTO

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—(AP)—A prediction that American motorists may some day drive on "liquid coal" came today from scientists preparing against the time when an emergency may compel use of gasoline substitutes.

Dr. Francis W. Godwin, of the research foundation of Armour Institute of Technology, made the forecast in discussing his development of "liquid coal" which already has been used to drive a standard 1939 automobile without changes in its carburetion system.

"Liquid coal" consists of 60 per cent range oil—a very light fuel—10 per cent light petroleum to make for easy starting, a small amount of a secret chemical, and 30 per cent pulverized coal.

"The liquid coal can be manufactured much cheaper than gasoline. Its use would open a way for utilization of the mountains of coal dust now piled up at the mines.

"By removal—through a chemical flotation process—of the ash bearing particles of the coal, the abrasion of the car's cylinder walls has been cut to the point where it cannot be easily detected. No coal is found to be deposited in the carburetor."

Irish Abandon Hope For Two American Fliers

DUBLIN, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Irish watchers abandoned hope tonight for Alexander Loeb, 32, and Richard Decker, 23, two American fliers who started across the Atlantic Friday morning from St. Peter's, Nova Scotia.

Neither ships nor aircraft reported sighting their old monoplane, similar to the one Charles A. Lindbergh flew to Paris in 1927, or any wreckage.

them. They were taken first to the navy hospital and then to another hospital.

It was against a crane of the arsenal that the plane struck.

The other seven passengers, all dead, were announced as follows:

Pablo Levin, an Argentine.

E. Valensa, a Belgian exporter of diamonds from Brazil.

Evaristo Miranda, Brazilian.

Edgard Oliviera, Brazilian.

Alberto Oliviera, Brazilian, and Lucila Oliviera Santos, his wife.

The first three boarded the plane at Bahia, while Omundesen and Miranda took the plane at Recife, Brazil.

Maxwell J. Rice, president of Panair do Brazil, said, "Although the cause of the accident has not yet been determined, something must have happened to the plane. It was comparatively new. Captain Person was a World War pilot and instructor in the American army. He has been with Pan American Airways 10 years and had an excellent record."

First in Nine Years.

Panair do Brazil, which is affiliated with Pan American, issued a statement recalling that the crash was its first grave accident in nine years' operation.

The plane was part of the flight that started from Miami last Wednesday in a big four-motored plane. At Port of Spain, Trinidad, Friday, the plane that crashed, a two-motored clipper, took up the itinerary.

The flight called for 24 stops between here and Miami, and the discharge and picking up of passengers at each stop made a check of the passenger list difficult.

The plane left Recife, 1,200 miles northeast of here, at 6 o'clock this morning, and made six stops today, the last at Victoria, Brazil.

Professor Rogers, who was killed, was one of Washington's better known figures in the early days of the New Deal when he was an unofficial adviser of President Roosevelt on economic measures.

He had intended to study the economic situation here.

Shell Blast Kills 6 National Guardsmen

Three Others Injured at Fort Knox When 'Dud' Brought to Post From Artillery Range Goes Off.

FORT KNOX, Ky., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Six Indiana national guardsmen, all non-commissioned officers and enlisted men, were killed late today by the explosion of a shell they brought in from the artillery range of the army post here, believeing it a "dud."

Three others suffered injuries but Major General Robert H. Tyndall, commanding the 38th division, 139th artillery, to which they were attached, expressed belief they would "get well." They were taken to the post hospital.

The dead:

Corporal Charles H. Handricks, Oakland City.

Private Willis Snow Jr., Evansville rural route 8.

Private John R. Jones, Princeton.

Private Arthur McCarty Jr., Princeton rural route.

The injured:

Sergeant William C. Hart, Princeton.

Private Dorris K. Fitch, Princeton.

Private Ralph Carter, Fort Branch.

5 Killed Instantly.

General Tyndall said five of the men were killed instantly and the death of the sixth followed shortly.

The explosion occured about 6 p. m. Atlanta time, in front of the tent occupied by the nine on a military "street" where Battery D, a unit of the division from Princeton, Ind., is housed during its 15-day training period. Virtually all the regular army troops of Fort Knox are at Plattsburg, N. Y., for the war maneuvers.

General Tyndall expressed belief the six artillerymen, ranging in age from 21 to 30, obtained the shell during a Sunday stroll although, he said post, division and regimental orders forbid "soldiers or civilians from touching shells on artillery ranges, whether exploded or not."

The three injured, the general said, escaped with "flesh wounds" because they were "some distance from the explosion—50 feet or more, probably."

He added that the six killed, although struck by numerous fragments, were not mangled and that the explosion made virtually no impression on the ground.

Victims Taken From Wreckage of $2,000,000 Train

Acme Telephoto.

Sunday's dawn broke on this grisly scene near Carlin, in the desert country of Nevada—covered bodies of the 19 victims of the wreck of the $2,000,000 streamliner "City of San Francisco." Railroad officials charge sabotage and reported finding two crowbars.

terror and injury throughout the sleek train, aboard which many passengers were asleep and others were enjoying themselves at the various diversions available on the smart flyer.

Sleeping passengers were hurled from their berths and tossed about in the aisles. Women screamed, the train lights went out as the hurtling cars lurched to a stop Injured cried out in pain.

T. J. Foley, assistant superintendent of the Southern Pacific's Salt Lake division, and J. H. Mahan, traffic agent, reported from the scene that the wreck was "clearly a case of sabotage with murderous intent."

Later railway investigators reported to San Francisco headquarters they had found two crowbars near the wreck of a type used to pull rail spikes from the ties. They said this indicated more than one person was involved in the alleged plot.

They told newsmen that one entire 30-foot length of rail had been moved four inches inward, and that the rail tie plates had again been spiked to the ties in the new position.

The power cars of the 17-car train, speeding 50 or 60 miles an hour across the Nevada desert, had sufficent momentum to be carried across the broken track and a small bridge just ahead.

Railway officials reported the powerful three-unit engine bumped for 997 feet along the ties before it came to rest, miraculously right side up.

The major damage to the bridge was done by following cars, which broke loose from the power unit, smashed into the bridge structure and then toppled 12 to 15 feet into the 50-foot-wide river bed, which contained less than three feet of water.

Six cars of the train piled up in the river bed in a space about 250 feet long. These included the coffee shop car, diner, club car and three sleeping cars. The rear four cars, sleepers and an observation-lounge car, remained on the track and were not damaged.

Nearly 1,000 feet of track was torn up by the plunging equipment.

Railway authorities said track electric contacts operating block signals had not been broken, leaving no warning there was anything the matter with the rails.

The last previous train had passed four hours before the wreck, which occurred about 10:33 p. m. (1:33 a. m., Sunday, Atlanta time).

Engineer E. F. Hecox said green tumbleweed covered the spot where the rail had been moved and that he felt the track give way as his power car passed over.

The train was due in Oakland, Cal., this morning.

The dead were placed aboard a special train and brought here. Officials said of the 149 persons on the streamliner, 134 had been accounted for. They expressed belief the other 15 were among the uninjured, and thus had not been contacted.

Injured passengers were removed to hospitals in Carlin and Elko, 32 being taken to the latter city.

Speed Rescue Trains.

Aid was quickly summoned from Carlin and Sparks, Nev., and Ogden, Utah. Four special trains sped during the night to the wreck scene. President A. E. McDonald, of the Southern Pacific, planned to board one of the relief trains at Soda Springs, Cal., to personally direct rescue efforts.

All available doctors and nurses were summoned to the scene.

Warren L. Monroe, publisher of the Elko, Nev., Independent, and one of the first outsiders to reach the scene, said one car was so badly smashed acetylene torches would be needed to cut into it.

"I saw bodies and parts of bodies, and I saw people lying around with broken arms and legs," he reported.

"It was an awful pileup. Only four of the 17 cars did not turn over. One car—the dinette, I think they called it—was so badly smashed they'll never get into it except with torches.

Take Bodies From River.

"While I was there, they were taking bodies from the Humboldt river, where one of the cars had tumbled.

"Some of the injured were groaning, but others were talking and laughing like nothing had happened. You could see doctors and nurses tending to people and carrying others around on stretchers.

"I saw five men, some of them negroes, lying in one group. Every one of them had at least a broken leg, but they were joking about it."

Three-Company Special.

Three railway lines participate in operation of the train, one of the nation's smartest and fastest transcontinental flyers. They are the Southern Pacific, the Union Pacific, and Chicago & Northwestern. The train was on Southern Pacific tracks when the wreck occurred.

Railroad officials said the train and its sister train, the City of Los Angeles, each 1,291 feet long, were considered the longest streamlined trains in the world.

The streamliner, painted a distinctive yellowish tan with brown top, travels between Chicago and San Francisco in 39 hours.

The scene of the wreck is arid and mountainous, and is the home of many Shoshone and Piute Indians.

Engineer Sounds Alarm for Help

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—Engineer Edward Hecox, pilot of the wrecked streamliner "City of San Francisco," sounded the alarm which brought help, although he was badly shaken in the crash himself, Southern Pacific officials said.

He ran approximately half a mile up the right of way along the Humboldt river in Nevada before he found a company telephone and was able to get a call through to Carlin, 20 miles eastward.

Hecox directed emergency operations until rescue workers arrived, railway officials here said.

MILAM UNINJURED IN NEVADA WRECK

Aubrey Milam, former city councilman, and his wife, who were aboard the streamliner wrecked near Carlin, Nev., were not injured, his family learned yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Milam were en route to San Francisco on a pleasure trip.

Railway officials telephoned Milam's family that he and his wife were not injured. No other Georgians were reported to have been on the ill-fated train.

Train Wreck Survivor Describes Struggle To Save Living in Debris

Woodwork Torn Up To Light Ghastly Scene as Power Supply Fails; Brave Rescue Work of Stewardess Is Told.

SPARKS, Nev., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Scenes of horror, bravery and pathos after the wreck of the streamliner train, "City of San Francisco," were described here tonight by A. O. Munger, Omaha, Neb., attorney who survived the tragedy without a scratch.

"I had just gone to bed and was lying in my berth awake," he said. "Suddenly, there was a violent bump, apparently caused by part of the train leaving the track. This was followed by a succession of bumps and swerving as the cars started piling up in the creek bed.

"As soon as the movement and noise stopped, uninjured persons ran out into the dark and started breaking glass in the car windows to get the living out.

"We had to tear up articles in the cars to build bonfires for light, because the power supply was put out of commission.

"One particularly touching part was enacted by the stewardess, Thelma Ristvedt, who received a terrific blow on the head. She was practically out on her feet, but she kept going trying to help those worse hurt than herself. Fnially, she collapsed, unable to talk, her face smeared with blood. Even then, she tried to indicate what to do until she temporarily lost consciousness.

"The coolness shown by most of the passengers was remarkable. A number of uninjured men immediately went to work getting other survivors out of the cars. The injured were laid out upon the ground and made as comfortable as possible, although some of them were in severe pain, and there seemed to be so little we could do for them.

"The temperature was about 50 degrees, which was not bad, but in the middle of the night, trying to take care of a lot of badly injured people, it was nothing pleasant."

PROFESSOR IS HERO OF TRAIN TRAGEDY

Dr. E. A. Betts, Badly Bruised, Credited With Saving Many Lives.

RENO, Nev., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Stories of horror and of praise for rescue workers were told here tonight by survivors of the wrecked streamline train City of San Francisco, who were unanimous in naming Dr. E. A. Betts, Pennsylvania State College professor, as a hero of the tragedy.

Dr. Betts, himself badly bruised, was credited by fellow passengers with saving the lives of many who would have bled to death had it not been for his work.

The doctor, head of the college's department of education and psychology, who was en route to a lecture engagement at Alameda, Cal., lost all his clothes and luggage.

"Never have I seen a more courageous display of nerve and coolness by the other passengers," he told interviewers.

"I spent the night applying tourniquets — 30 of them — and helping as much as I could. Every friend I had on the train was instantly killed."

Reactions of other survivors, who arrived here from the wreck by special train, included:

W. Kiterman and Mary Locke, Chicago: "Everyone remained cool and calm after the first shock was over. Porters were especially brave, insisting that rescuers help others first. Sulphur monoxide gas would have suffocated everyone if windows had not been immediately broken."

John Pierpont, New York City: "I'd prefer not to talk about the whole thing. It's too horrible to think about or describe."

Mrs. R. Wornum, London, England: "You should be proud that you are an American after the courageous and intelligent behavior of those in the wreck. The stewardess, stewards, crew and especially the men passengers, handled the situation marvelously.

"There was no hysteria. Even the children handled themselves well. Dr. Betts was undoubtedly the hero of the situation. He worked unceasingly throughout the night, helping in every way he possibly could."

Attempt To Wreck Santa Fe Chief Told

GALLUP, N. M., Aug. 13.—(AP)—An apparent attempt to wreck of the A. T. & S. F. railroad's crack Santa Fe Chief on a bridge east of here July 18 was disclosed tonight by the trainmaster's office.

Officials said the fast streamliner was forced to stop to investigate a loud pounding under the engine, but it was found an angle bar—used for pulling spikes out of rail ties—had been knocked off the tracks without damage to the engine. It apparently had been placed on the tracks.

An investigation followed, but there were no clues.

Georgia Prisons

"Shoot to kill" is a fearsome order to give, yet, under the present prison system of the state of Georgia, it is necessary that guards follow these instructions. But the taking of a human life is so repugnant to all sane men that every Georgian will wish to see the prison system so operated that prisoners can be kept within bounds and guards will seldom, if ever, have to "shoot to kill."

In the present inadequateness of the penal facilities of Georgia much of the system is perforce unsatisfactory. The Tattnall penitentiary, which would be the ideal lodging place of desperate criminals from the safety standpoint, has been turned over to the function of rehibilitation of less dangerous criminals. The dangerous criminals, on the other hand, are sent to county and state camps reputedly "Alcatraz" camps. The opportunity for rehabilitation of these dangerous men is thereby lost and at the same time they are afforded probably more opportunity to make good their escape. Guards are poorly paid and, in at least one instance, admittedly not trained. Being poorly paid, it is axiomatic that many, even though trained in some measure, are not efficient or capable.

Georgians may well ask whether the experience of other states could not be utilized in the state system with, as in California, dangerous men kept within prison walls and never permitted in open spaces from which they might escape, from which a guard might have to "shoot to kill." And if this is not feasible today, why cannot it be a goal toward which the state may look?

While each state has its own peculiar problems in the handling of criminals, it will be found that the California system had many in common with those of Georgia. The solution has been a strong prison for desperate criminals, a "moderate" prison for stilf others, and "honor" road camps for the "graduates" from the "moderate" prison. This, it will be noted, is exactly the reverse of the Georgia system, and, indeed, under the present concept of prison work in this state, would not be operable. The "honor" camps of the California system are state-operated, in contradistinction to the many county-operated camps of this state, over which the state system has only nominal control.

On the other hand, it may be questioned whether it would not be less expensive and more generally satisfactory for the state to abolish the practice of placing state prisoners in county camps and make provision for penitentiary incarceration of prisoners of the type of Forrest Turner and Forrest Ewing. Most certainly it would be better for youthful prisoners to be placed in outdoor surroundings, with, of course, due precautions, but without undue emphasis on prison existence. The Turners, Ewings, Smiths and Harveys are water over the dam. They have passed the rehabilitation stage. The best place for them is behind walls, not out where they have opportunities for escape, no matter how slight.

The youngsters are the ones in the prison system who count. They're just on the wrong road, running without lights and with thin tires. Give them a light, good tires and the right road and Georgia can make something of them. Would it not be better than letting the Ewings work in the fresh open air—with escape beckoning at every corner?

Gubernatorial Powers

Leslie Lipson's book, "The American Governor, From Figurehead to Leader," records a notable change in public affairs in this country. The most important point on which the volume focuses attention is the state governor, once not much more than a figurehead; today, in most states, both an administrative and legislative leader.

Principally responsible for this change, Lipson states, is the highly important power of veto. The governor has the power of veto in all states except North Carolina. In the early days of the American nation, the administrators of royal colonies had as much veto power as present-day governors. This background is interesting, for it was the popular distrust of the executive, as exemplified in colonial times by the British king, that persuaded the colonists, when they came to the task of setting up their own government, to place their faith in legislatures, rather than in the executive. It was this that made the governor a mere figurehead, points out Lipson.

That the governors use their veto power is shown by the fact that this year, in 30 states in which legislatures have adjourned already, governors refused to sign about 1,000 pieces of legislation. Observers note the governors thus saved many millions of taxpayers' dollars and avoided a great deal of possibly "over legislation."

In the veto power lies the governors' main strength. That most of them handle it with care is highly creditable.

A "Terrible Job"

Robert Strickland, Atlanta banker, returning from a trip to South America, summed up in two words the position of the United States as regards trade in that part of the Western Hemisphere. A "terrible job," he said—meaning thereby the difficulties to be overcome because of the differences in standards of living and the preferential status of other nations.

Strickland, like the keen observer he is, struck right to the core of one of the difficulties in improving trade relations by comparing wage and hour standards of South American countries with the United States. Such difficulties can be overcome only by careful negotiations such as are being conducted by Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

But striking a trade balance between competing nations producing the same products, such as the Argentine and the United States, is an almost insurmountable task for the reason that one or the other cannot, to any great extent, import farm products due to domestic surpluses.

Compare the Argentine's position with Great Britain, as against the United States. Britain needs practically everything the Argentine produces, has invested uncounted millions of capital there for the express purpose of developing production of these products and, under such circumstances, it is a "terrible job," as the banker put it, to overcome the handicap. Argentina, he pointed out, while more like the United States, is closer to England.

Brazil, on the other hand, prefers the United States. This is also understandable. The United States is the greatest coffee-drinking nation in the world, but produces none. Brazil is the greatest coffee-producing nation. She ships vast quantities to the United States. Credit is thereby established here and manufactured goods and other needed things not produced in Brazil are purchased against it. Both nations are fortunate in having this natural economic position. Remove coffee from the picture and the trade difficulties would become manifold.

The problems which Secretary Hull is striving to overcome in South America, as well as in other parts of the world, through reciprocal trade agreements, can be better understood as a result of the Atlanta banker's keen observations. A "terrible job" no doubt, but nevertheless not insurmountable.

Wise Precautions

Should it come to pass that again the United States must face the immediacy of conflict with another major power, there will at least be one consolation. In some measure, although not by any means completely, will this country be prepared.

The appointment of an advisory war resources board, jointly by the army and navy, is indicative of the determination of this nation that another 1916 and 1917 will not find the country in the midst of an almost ludicrous attempt to swing its latent power into action.

The joint maneuvers of regular army and national guard troops assure a quicker absorption of the citizen troops into the fighting machine for combat service and for the necessary behind-the-lines organizations. At Manassas in Virginia, in northern New York and on the Pacific coast the mimic warfare is under way or in its opening phases.

In 1917 the rallying of economic and citizen resources of this country practically all had to be accomplished after the entrance of this country into the war. Equipment had to be manufactured, guard troops had to be prepared for service and their personnel weeded out, industry was unable to provide war necessities, since there had been no provision made for the change in operations required.

Had the equipment been available, and the men trained, sufficient ships were not available and the nation actually turned to wooden and concrete vessels in order to secure quicker construction. Even today, this transportation lack is extremely serious, although it is being to some extent relieved by the Maritime Commission.

Some 10,000 manufacturing plants have been trained in the role which would be their lot in time of war. The advisory board will still further concentrate upon this last task.

No sane man would want this preparation to be stepped up to anything approaching the European frenzy, but no sane man will wish to see any brake placed upon preparedness that will guarantee there will be no repetition of 1917.

Amazed watchers of the political trend can't get over congress incubating the Hatch bill when everyone thought it was sitting on a doorknob.

Editorial of the Day

DIRTY STREETS

(From The Palm Beach Times.)

Americans are so free that now and then they become nuisances to themselves. Take the matter of clean streets as an example. If writers and travelers be true, American cities are much dirtier than any of the great European cities, dirtier than most of the major cities of South America.

It is not so much because our street-cleaning systems are inferior. It is simply because most free Americans interpret as part of that freedom the right to stroll down the streets scattering refuse gaily and thoughtlessly as they go. That empty cigaret package, that banana skin, the discarded newspaper, the wrapper from the package—off they go into the street and the breeze, out of speeding cars, out of hand. Who cares? Don't we pay the street department to clean up after us?

In New York city 110,000 school children are being taught to fight this attitude; police arrested 22,402 chronic violators of anti-litter laws after due warnings, the American Public Works Association reports. But the basic responsibility is on every citizen. Those who think, and those who care, will not litter up the streets in the first place.

We can, of course, be free without being dirty. In fact the cleaner we are the freer we are. And then, cleanliness, beyond being next to godliness, constitutes just about 99 44-100 parts of beauty.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

GHOSTS OF 1920 WALK AGAIN HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 11.—Here in Pennsylvania, the ghosts of 1920 walk again. That was another year when the Republicans wanted a candidate to clean up after a progressive Democratic President. And that year the Pennsylvania delegation decided the outcome of the Republican convention.

The deadlock between Wood and Lowden, the meeting in the smoke-filled room, the interminable conferences of Republican magnates—all these incidents of the convention are easily recalled. Not so often remembered is the fact that the Pennsylvania delegates, pledged to a favorite son, Governor William C. Sproul, were the largest bloc of free votes on the convention floor. They were free by the shrewd strategy of the great buccaneer, Boies Penrose. It was to Penrose, lying ill of the disease that killed him, that the Republican magnates turned. It was Penrose's voice, gruff on the long distance telephone from his sickbed, that gave the nomination to Warren Gamaliel Harding.

JUNTA'S SCHEME It may be an ill omen that the present inheritors of Boies Penrose's tradition are said to be considering the same sort of maneuver for the Republican convention in 1940. What is more, they might conceivably pull it off, with great luck on their side.

They form a tight, manageable junta with Governor Arthur James as front man; his backers, Joseph N. Pew Jr., of the Sun Oil Company and the old tariff lobbyist, Joe Grundy, as money-bags and managers, and James' Roosevelt-hating Texan adviser, the mysterious Colonel Carl Lewis Estes, as strategist and contact man. James has distributed state government patronage on an iron-clad system. Although there are disgruntled former allies, like Moses L. Annenberg, and large elements angrily discontented with the James policies, there should be little difficulty about controlling the Pennsylvania convention delegation.

As reportedly formulated, the junta's scheme is to make Governor James Pennsylvania's favorite son, and to hold the delegates for him until bargaining time comes. Of course, if either Senators Taft or Vandenberg, or the young gang-buster, Tom Dewey, or any other candidates goes into the convention with a bandwagon majority, this scheme will not work. The scheme anticipates the Republican deadlock which many fear. Yet if no deadlock develops, the junta will still be free to push for the kind of candidate they want.

CENTER BATTALION The report of the scheme requires certain footnotes. Some state (in a tone that suggests guesswork) that Pew really favors Bob Taft. Others declare that both Estes and James himself take the James candidacy seriously, although James is the kind of shopworn organization politcian whose higher aspirations are rarely serious. Then, too, Estes is understood to have a finger in the Democratic as well as the Republican pie, and to be pushing Garner as the Democratic nominee. He tells his cronies that his "ideal campaign" would be one between Garner and James—which would have the odd result of making the Uvalde squire look like a raging radical by mere comparison.

Finally, there are a good many people here who will tell you that the James-Pew-Grundy-Estes junta has diminished the importance of the next Republican candidate, by returning Pennsylvania to the list of doubtful states. After the last election Pennsylvania jubilantly counted as surely Republican in 1940, but in addition to giving the labor and relief votes good hidings, the junta has enraged the teachers, endangered the Republicans of Philadelphia by blocking a much-needed city charter, and placed its large foot in its capacious mouth in several other ways.

But footnotes or no footnotes, the fact remains that the junta will almost certainly own the Pennsylvania delegation—the second biggest—when the Republicans foregather next spring. Equally certain, the junta will demand a candidate as like Governor James as possible. Their perfect standard-bearer is a man who will make a personal campaign against Roosevelt, seek to return matters to their status quo ante-New Deal, and in general reject every reasonable compromise. They do not want a mere middle-of-the-roader, for their somewhat jaundiced eyes see little difference between Republican moderates and ardent New Dealers. They will form the center battalion of the Republican old guard, waving their tattered banner with the curious device (a checkbook rampant), and swearing to die before they surrender.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Heigho, Heigho,
Off for fun we go,
To sail the seas,
Face ocean breeze
And drown all care below.

Heigho, Heigho,
We'll see the folks again.
We'll walk the ways
Of childhood days
And joys of youth regain.

Goodbye, For a While.

A few hours after you read this, presuming you absorb your morning paper along with the breakfast bacon, friend wife and I will be on board a train pulling out for New York. I think, when we first feel the motion as that train starts we'll actually realize to the full, for the first time, that the dream of so many years is at last coming true. It has been, during these weeks of preparation, so gorgeous as to be beyond perfect belief. Too good to be true, if you understand what I mean.

Even, though, there is still a sense of unreality on the journey to New York, during the few hours we expect to stay in that city, we'll have to pause for full savor of the reality after we are once on board the S. S. Aquitania, moving down the river and passing the Statue of Liberty, with the prow pointed toward Old England.

Then, after six days at sea, there'll be the drawing in to the dock at Southampton and the eager search for those who will be there to meet us. Trust mutual recognition is possible after all these years.

Then the train journey through the heart of England to Liverpool and, at last, home once more. Why is it that no place on earth, not even Atlanta, can ever hold the spot in a fellow's affections that belongs to his native spot of earth?

Silhouettes To Carry On.

There will be some silhouettes to be written on shipboard and on the other side. It will, of course, take a couple of weeks or more to send those back for publication here. Just between us, I've written quite a number for future publication, before leaving, and there may be enough to close the gap. In case there are not, however, the fellows in the office have promised to do a little pinch-hitting. Maybe they'll tell on me, when they get the chance, but I hope not.

Expect to be back in Atlanta about September 15. So, 'til then, I'll be seeing you!

There Is The Fair.

We might, at that, be delayed one extra day in coming home. For friend wife is insisting it would be criminal to be right in New York and not take at least one hurried glimpse at the World's Fair. Certainly we can't do it on the eastbound journey, so, if it is done at all, it will have to be on the return.

Incidentally, there is only one detail that is worrying me. A worry that springs from an experience I had nearly 30 years ago.

Was traveling from Guelph, Ontario, to Greensboro, N. C. Changed trains at London, Ont., Niagara Falls, N. Y., Buffalo, N. Y., and Washington, D. C.

At Buffalo we had to cross town from one depot to another for the connection. Was late at night and we had to hurry to make the train out. Somehow, a piece of baggage, checked, was delayed and I had to check on the check, to Washington. We spent a day's stopover in Washington, but even then the missing baggage didn't catch up. So, again, it was a case of check on the check.

At our destination, Greensboro, it was a week later before the bag showed up. Where it had been in the meantime, goodness knows.

And I'm worried. For we'll have to check a trunk to New York. Suppose it didn't make the same train we're on! We are due there at noon, Tuesday. And must be on board the Aquitania before noon, Wednesday.

If that trunk failed to arrive with us, we'd be in a helluva predicament. Now, wouldn't we?

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From the news column of Friday, August 14, 1914:

"That a great battle is impending between the Germans and the British, French and Belgian alllies is the news that comes out of London."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Wednesday, August 14, 1889:

"Mrs. Will Plane and her little son, Edward Victor, left last week for a lengthy visit to Danville."

Advice Reversed.

Here's what A. E. Sheldon, superintendent of the Nebraska Historical Society, says about it:

"You will not be able to pile up fortunes as men have done in the past. There will be no more great fortunes made in Nebraska in the next 72 years."

Here's why, says Sheldon:

First, in the old days merchandise handlers expected to make 25 to 100 per cent profit on things they sold.

Second, in the old days buyers expected 10 to 20 cents a bushel for grain they handled. Now they get 3 to 4 cents, or less.

Third, farmers once paid 15 per cent interest on farm implements bought on time. It's 5 per cent or less now.

Fourth, there are no longer any great booms in land prices.

"In your time," Sheldon tells young . . . "a large part of your profit must consist of community satisfaction."

The future, as he sees it, will bring a more even and general distribution of the products of land, labor and capital, and "people who are willing to work will have access to the land on very favorable terms."

For Adults Only.

In Rio de Janeiro crying babies won't disturb the city moviegoers in the future. The city's juvenile court judge has ruled that children of less than five years cannot go to the movies. Children under 14 can't enter a theater after 8 p. m.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

A HAPPY DRIVE.

Take a map of Georgia and a pencil and trace a little trip Mrs. N. and I took last Wednesday and Thursday, as follows: Atlanta to Monroe to Athens to Commerce to Homer to Cornelia to Clarkesville to Tallulah Falls to Clayton to Hiawassee to Young Harris to Blairsville to Blue Ridge to Ellijay to Jasper to Tate to Ball Ground to Canton to Woodstock to Marietta to Atlanta. That drive checks up 337 miles, which you comfortably make in a day, if you do not stop too often and too long, and when you make it you will be very happy in the realization that the good friends all along that trip will have plenty to eat this winter.

More than that, you will come home more grateful than ever for the progress which the people of north Georgia are making—progress in farming, in raising hogs and cows and chickens, in growing abundance of fruits, particularly apples, in making their homes more attractive, in building better roads, better schoolhouses, etc., etc.

We stopped all along the way to speak to many friends, and I was grateful to hear the people say they are happy in trying to make a living. I didn't hear a single man say he was trying to make money, but invariably they emphasized the fact they were trying to make a living, and that they were succeeding at the job.

For example, we stopped at Homer, and I talked a few minutes to Editor Hilton, of the Banks County Journal—a weekly newspaper that has occupied the same little board building a half century. He sets his type by hand. He has been with the paper 33 years. I asked him how he was getting along.

"Why, I am just as happy as a man can be," he replied. "We manage to make a living, and that's good enough, isn't it?"

At Hiawassee I went in to see my dear old friend, Uncle Frank Lloyd, honored pastor of the McConnell Memorial Baptist church in that historic village in the surpassingly beautiful valley of Hiawassee. They dedicated the new meeting house yesterday. We drove by to see it. It stands on the very site of the old McConnell home, where Dr. F. C. McConnell and his brother Sam were born. A good many of the brick in the beautiful meeting house are the brick that composed the noble McConnell dwelling. I felt like I was on sacred soil. Bishop Candler, as a circuit rider, used to visit in the McConnell home. Dr. George Truett made it his home when he came from Hayesville to attend school at Hiawassee. Uncle Frank is very sick. He told me he felt as if he would soon be at home.

Hunting Encouraged.

Rabbit hunters are going to get a warm welcome from El Paso county ranchers. In fact they have a hearty invitation from the farmers to hunt any time they care to. The reason: jackrabbits suddenly have multiplied so rapidly they are destroying crops. "I counted 100 rabbits on the highway while driving four miles," said Rush Appleman, who asked the hunters for aid.

That'll Learn 'Em.

The jackrabbits' liking for trees and shade is luring him to death. The United States forest service discovered the rabbits were coming from miles around to sit in the shade and gnaw trees in shelterbelt strips in Childress county, Texas. So they scattered poisoned grain. Jackrabbits liked that even better than bark.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

BUSTER RABBIT AND MR. RAYBURN Mr. Sam Rayburn ruined my Sabbath. I was just in the middle of the fourth reading of the story of "Buster Rabbit" to a young lady with scarlet fever, when a New Dealer came to call.

"Do you really think Sam Rayburn meant it when he referred to John Garner as a great liberal Democrat?" he asked.

"Have you ever read the story of 'Buster Rabbit?'" I parried, seeking to divert him. "It is about an obstreperous and strong-headed young rabbit who ignored the advice of his elders and went off trespassing for superior cabbage. It might be possible to use Buster Rabbit as a symbol for the Young Democrats at Pittsburgh or for modern youth."

"Perhaps Buster had rabbit fever," he said. "I want to talk about Rayburn and Garner."

"So many people want to talk about Mr. Garner. Mr. Rayburn is talking for him. There is a difference."

"I want to talk about him," he said. "If Garner is a great liberal so are Hitler and Mussolini." He glared.

I don't know why it is, but just when everything gets quiet and there is calming literature at hand such as "The Adventures of Buster Rabbit," someone comes along who insists upon talking politics.

The New Dealers, who do not care for Mr. Garner, are incensed at the thought he may be the next president of the United States. The fact that on late Saturday afternoon Mr. Sam Rayburn "plumped" for Mr. Garner, ruined their Sabbaths and so they went about ruining the Sabbath of others.

I do not think it is, at this time, worth getting up one's dander. Mr. Garner would make a better president than did William Howard Taft or Warren Harding. He would be better than others of whom I can think. The nation survived them with no undue trouble. I even think Mr. Garner would make a better president than the late Calvin Coolidge. Mr. Garner would not be my choice, unless nominated by the Democratic party. There is no one as yet on the Republican horizon worthy enough to cause a Democrat to desert his party.

I tried to explain this to the New Dealer, meanwhile holding the volume containing Buster Rabbit in my hand in a manner suggestive of eagerness to return to it. He did not see it. He kept wanting an explanation of why the administration floor leader, Mr. Rayburn, termed Mr. Garner "a great liberal." Evidently he did it because he is a Texas politician and because he so thinks. But this was not a satisfactory explanation. It was hours before I got back to the fascinating story of Buster Rabbit.

THE STRADDLEBUG? Mr. Roosevelt's speech to the Young Democrats in which he referred to "a conservative or straddlebug," patently was pointed at Mr. Garner and the group which supports him.

Also speaking before the Young Democrats was Mr. Paul McNutt, recent presidential appointee, and prominent as a potential presidential candidate.

Mr. McNutt would extend the social security laws and would support the New Deal institutions. He praised Mr. Roosevelt as the greatest of liberals, thus linking him in a manner of speaking, with Mr. Garner. Both men now have been described as great liberals.

Mr. McNutt looms larger on the horizon than ever before. He is a practical politician. He would, if he enters, carry the Roosevelt blessing. He would not be viewed with entire favor by the more leftish of the New Dealers but they likely would string along.

Also, I think Mr. McNutt would be viewed with some favor by the group which supports Mr. Garner. The Texan, I do not believe, will make an aggressive fight for the nomination. If Mr. Roosevelt does not enter the lists, Mr. McNutt will make an aggressive fight.

The fly in the McNutt ointment is Mr. Farley. The postmaster general, it reliably is reported, does not care for Mr. McNutt. It is going to be an interesting session.

If Mr. Garner and Mr. Farley make an agreement they likely will control the convention. And Mr. Roosevelt may take a walk.

Extraordinarily cheerful, these Republicans, aren't they?

AS TO DEFINITIONS The old trouble with definitions and shop-worn words once more is before us.

Mr. Rayburn, the floor leader for the Democratic party, declares Mr. Garner a great liberal.

Mr. Roosevelt apparently views him as a conservative or a "straddlebug."

The New Dealers say of a conservative that he is a person who never wishes to do anything the first time. That is quite unfair. The New Deal attempted to crowd so many reforms, close on the heels of one another, that they became jammed, awkward and unmanageable. A little more conservative handling of the reforms would not have cost the administration prestige and, more important, authority. Public spending was not accomplishing the desired ends. It was not liberalism to go on spending it in the old manner.

No matter who becomes president, there will be no effort to abolish social security, with its pensions for the old and its insurance for unemployment. No reforms will be abrogated. A conservative administration need not at all be a reactionary administration. The two words, conservative and reactionary, do not at all mean the same thing.

Mr. McNutt and Mr. Rayburn each have advanced "great liberals." Can it be both are right?

When The Champion Frog Couldn't Jump, Somebody Had Filled Him With Shot

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Repairs to an old homestead usually wait upon a new owner. The one who owns it now has grown old with it. He adjusted himself to its defects as they developed, and now he no longer sees them. They are apparent only to new ones.

Reforms come slowly for the same reason. The present system, good or bad, is part of our lives. We grew up with it. We are tied to it as we are tied to the past.

But a new generation, having no emotional ties with what has been done, is able to start at scratch like the new owner of a house. If blessed with clear vision, it can see what needs doing; if blessed with understanding, it will keep the good and discard the bad.

But we cannot wait for a new generation. If we would keep the house from falling, we must act now.

If the present state of our country had developed in a night—if the people of prosperous, unworried, busy 1928 had awakened one morning to find all things as they are now, their wrath and fear would have made a revolution.

Now they seem resigned to things as they are. They cannot realize what a mess they are in because it developed slowly and gave them time for mental adjustment. They cannot judge it as a stranger would, for their emotions are involved in it. Personalities overshadow ideas.

Yet we must somehow see things as new eyes would, forgetting political parties and persons and praise and blame, detaching ourselves from the past and ridding ourselves of blinding prejudice, if we would see with the clear vision that is necessary to our salvation.

Neither Democrat nor Republican matters now. We must face this job as Americans, with no concern except our country and our people.

We see our country, the richest on earth, steadily losing ground while others recover. Seven bitter hard years of patient endurance have served only to increase our burdens. The nation's taxable wealth has decreased 24 billion dollars; industrial production has fallen 17 per cent; we have 17 per cent of our people on "permanent" relief; our national debt has doubled; our banks are stuffed with government paper, and so at the mercy of our shaky national solvency; our public servants of all parties, having no solution of our problems, escape their responsibility by appropriating more handout money to keep the people pacified.

What is wrong! Only this is certain, that no fabulously rich country with vast resources and vast production, can stay down for ten years unless some artificial hindrance keeps it from getting up. If we can agree on that, we can still save the house from collapse.

BERSERK INVENTOR SLAYS WIFE, SELF

Daughter Brutally Bludgeoned With Hammer During Bloody Chase.

SOUTH NYACK, N. Y., Aug. 13.—(AP)—The socially prominent wife of a New York inventor was hacked to death with a butcher's cleaver, her daughter was brutally attacked with a hammer and the inventor himself died several hours after tonight from razor slashes.

The shambles that spread blood from top to bottom of their pretentious home overlooking the Hudson river from the Palisades was attributed by Rockland County District Attorney George V. Dorsey to Ralph Raymond, 58, inventor for the Bell Telephone laboratories in New York city.

He recently had visited a doctor for treatment of a nervous disorder.

Raymond's son John, 30, who returned home to find his mother slain, his sister brutally battered and his father dying, collapsed and was taken to a hospital.

The elder Raymond died before police could question him.

His attractive daughter Phyllis, 29, was in a critical condition in the Nyack hospital.

As District Attorney Dorsey reconstructed the bloody attack, Raymond laid aside a book he had been reading and advanced to the bedroom of his wife, Lillian, with the 14-inch cleaver.

Their daughter entered and, brandishing a hammer, he chased her from attic to front door in what Dorsey described as "running battle for her life."

"The 14-room house is blood from top to bottom," Dorsey said.

State's 13,000-Acre Proving Ground Boasts Good Yield in Wheat, Oats

Georgia's agricultural experts, told to "put up or shut up" on the 13,000-acre proving ground near Eatonton, are doing very nicely, despite eroded, submarginal land.

Director H. P. Stuckey, of the Georgia Experiment station near Griffin, disclosed yesterday his assistants have harvested an average of 35 bushels of oats and 12 bushels of wheat per acre on 500 acres planted in improved grain types this year.

That, he says, isn't so bad, compared with Georgia's oat average of 19.5 bushels per acre, and a wheat average of 8.5 bushels.

The huge proving farm was an idea of ruddy, 68-year-old Chancellor S. V. Sanford, of the Georgia University system, who was unimpressed by claims of extension service scientists concerning advances in agricultural methods.

"These fellows at the experimen station," he observed, "come to me and say if the farmers just would do so-and-so and grow this-and-that, they could make money.

"Shucks, it's no trick to make a fine showing on a well-fertilized, well-tended plat of one-fifth acre at the experiment station—but what can the average southern farmer do on his sorry, worn-out soil?"

That was a fair description of the Piedmonnt Co-operative Land Use Area when the experiment station experts embarked on their projects last year. Recently R. P. Bledsoe, of the agronomy department, supervised harvest of 300 acres of newly-developed Terruf oats and 200 acres of improved Gasta wheat. The per-acre averages, although from 25 to 55 per cent in excess of ordinary yields, brought apologies from Director Stuckey.

This, of course, seems like rather low yields," he said, "but is accounted for by a considerable proportion of land being submarginal and eroded, and of course made very low yields, pulling down the average. It was necessary that we plant some of this very poor land in oats and wheat to block out fields in sufficient large units to work them with farm machinery.

"A large proportion of the better soil produced more than 60 bushels of oats to the acre and 30 bushels or more of wheat to the acre."

Other large-scale projects under experiment include plantings of peanuts, corn, improved cotton, peppers, soybeans, flax, muscadine grapes, collards and kobe lespedeza. All are yet to be harvested, Dr. Stuckey said, with yields uncertain until final checkup.

Improved seed produced on the proving area is to be sold at cost to farmers, Chancellor Sanford announced.

was third in that round's 12th heat. In heat No. 21 Edward Weidenbach, Augusta, Ga., was second. Coon was second in the third heat of the second round. William Harvey, Atlanta, Ga., as third in the ninth heat of the second round. He had won heat No. 27 in the first round.

More than a 100,000 screaming people sat through rain showers to witness the races. This year's event, said to be the finest ever run, was completed without a single complaint against any car being filed by the national technical committee, which spent two days going over every entrants' cars, checking workmanship, wheels, and other features. Every car was given the official okay and was declared to be boy-built.

The races this year were by far the fastest ever run. Less than one second separated the fastest and slowest cars in the race.

Racing against this fast field, William Harvey, of Atlanta, made a fine showing with his orange colored car before being eliminated in the 47th heat by Carl Cedarstrand, of Washington, D. C., after running neck and neck to within a few feet of the finish line.

Since his arrival in Akron, late Thursday afternoon, the Atlanta champion has had a full round of entertainment, including sightseeing trips, theater parties, baseball games and banquets enough to thrill and impress the heart of any boy.

The races this afternoon were preceded by a colorful parade headed by the Essex Highlanders Kiltie band from Canada and 20 other bands. The paraders marched the entire length of the course. Floats represented every sport of the world today. A special float carried the Soap Box Derby champions of the past five years, brought back by the Chevrolet Motor Company, to be its guests and meet this year's entrants.

At a mammoth banquet here tonight with over a thousand people attending, Harvey received his city championship diploma and the beautiful wrist watch awarded each city champion each year.

The Atlanta party will leave Akron Monday morning, expecting to arrive in Atlanta late Tuesday afternoon.

Soviet-Japanese Clash Held Imminent at North Sakhalin

Nippon Expected To Send Naval Squadron To Blockade Island.

By FRANK H. HEDGES.
By the North American Newspaper Alliance.

TOKYO, Aug. 13.—Action in northern Sakhalin, the Soviet Russian-owned half of this northernmost island of the Japanese empire, can be expected at any time.

Since mid-June the Japanese and Manchukuoan forces have been engaging the Russian and Outer Mongol troops and aviators in armed clashes on so large a scale as to amount almost to undeclared war. Northern Sakhalin gives every appearance of being distined to become the next active battlefront in the Far East.

Japan's grievances against Moscow are numerous and Japan never hesitates to air them. The refusal of Moscow to agree to a new long-term fisheries agreement is of long standing. So is the frequent border fighting in Manchukuo.

Sakhalin Is Problem.

The northern Sakhalin problem is in something of a category of its own. Following the re-establishing of diplomatic relations between Moscow and Tokyo, extensive oil and coal concessions, plus the right to prospect for these valuable materials, were granted to Japanese interests in Soviet-governed northern Sakhalin. They were guaranteed by the treaty re-establishing normal relations between the two nations.

There has been almost continuous bickering between these Japanese concessionaries and their Japanese employes on the one side, and the local Soviet authorities on the other.

It is only during the last two years that the situation has grown really acute, however. A part of the oil and coal produced by the Japanese must be delivered to the Soviet, corresponding to a rental on the land. For two years the specified amount has not been delivered, with the result that a case was brought against the Japanese concessionaries in the Soviet courts, resulting in the imposition of a 400,000 rouble fine on the Japanese.

Refuse to Pay Fine.

The Japanese oil men, backed by the Tokyo government, contended this was an illegal fine, and refused to pay it. Moscow gave them until midnight, June 19, saying it would attack the Japanese property if this fine were not paid by then. The zero hour has come and gone without any action being taken, but Tokyo is unquestionably preparing for counter action and that very quickly.

The Japanese contend that, by blocking both imports and exports, the Soviet authorities have made it imposible for them to carry on their coal and oil operations, and their Japanese employes are actually suffering from lack of food, due to this unannounced blockade.

This situation is, in itself, enough to bring about action by Japan and especially by the Japanese navy. Recently a new squadron was formed in the Japanese navy which is expected to be sent to the waters around northern Sakhalin and there impose a blockade similar to the land blockade of the British concession at Tientsin.

What retaliatory steps the Soviet may take are not known. It will be difficult for them, because of inadequate naval facilities in Pacific waters, to do anything at Sakhalin itself, but it will be quite easy for them to increase their attacks on Manchukuo, possibly Korea and almost certainly the Japanese fishing fleets in Siberian waters.

Tokyo Accuses Russia of Insincerity in New Labor Contracts.

TOKYO, Aug. 13.—(AP) — The Japanese foreign office accused Soviet Russia of insincerity today in the new Sakhalin island labor contracts and disclosed that the Japanese foreign, war, navy and commerce ministries had held an important consultation on the subject Saturday.

(On Friday the Soviet government announced in Moscow the signing of a collective agreement by Russian oil workers and Japanese concessionaires covering working conditions in the northern, or Soviet, half of the island. The southern half of the island, which lies north of Japan and off the coast of Siberia, is Japanese.

(The Soviet announcement said the new agreement provided for a 15 per cent wage increase and other benefits for the workers, the concessionaires being given in return permission to import an additional 300 Japanese workers.)

The foreign office in a statement said the Russians had informed the Moscow representative of the North Sakhalin Oil Company that they would not permit operations in certain sections of the Katangli and Ehasi fields, that they could not see the necessity for laying certain railway tracks in the oil fields and finally that they were unable to furnish a Soviet labor statement.

"It is evident," concluded the Japanese statement, "that the Soviets deliberately delayed negotiations for a contract in an attempt to exert strong pressure upon Japanese rights and interests. This explains the refusal to send sufficient workers to the fields."

SPANISH PEASANTS RIOT, FIGHT GUARDS

Refusal To Pay for Sugar Crops, Levies Blamed.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 13.—(UP)—Reports reached the frontier tonight of serious rioting during the past week in the Ribera region of Navarre province where Spanish peasants fought with civil guards dispatched from Pamplona to make wholesale arrests.

The disorders were said to have developed from the refusal of Pamplona sugar refineries to pay the peasants for their crops and the action of Navarrese civil authorities in making government levies on the crops.

The Navarrese frontier was closed today to all traffic and detachments of Navarrese requetes were withdrawn from border posts and replaced by regular army units because of the reported discontent with Generalissimo Francisco Franco's domestic policies.

2 IDAHO FOREST FIRES EDGE NORTHEASTWARD

SPOKANE, Wash, Aug. 13.—(AP) Two north Idaho forest fires edged slowly northeastward today toward the timbered shores of Couer d'Alene and Pend Oreille lakes as an overnight calm continued.

A third large blaze, which sprang up last night at the edge of the Colville Indian reservation 60 miles northwest of Spokane, was controlled today after it had blackened 1,200 acres.

Thirty miles northeast of Spokane the little mill village of Spirit Lake, Idaho, half deserted today, was an island in a smouldering sea of black, and the fire which menaced it for two days and nights moved off toward Pend Oreille lake, 20 miles to the northeast.

64 MILLION PAID IN BANK INSURANCE

FDIC's Six-Month Outlay to 359,138 Depositors Sets New Record.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation reported today that it paid out $64,000,000 to depositors in 48 insolvent or unsound banks during the first half of 1939, the largest six-months' outlay since government insurance of bank deposits became effective in 1934.

The money went to 359,138 depositors.

These payments, the corporation said, represented "the greatest single reinforcement of the banking system since the wholesale injection of new capital following the banking holiday."

The FDIC, the report added, used its lending powers to facilitate mergers in cases involving three-fourths of the protected deposits. This, it said, was done without loss to depositors of the institutions involved and without interruption to banking services.

Despite these unprecedented expenditures, the surplus of the corporation increased, amounting to $135,182,610 as of June 30. The corporation reported income for the six-month period of $25,748,559, with expenses and losses of $22,292,086.

All but 1,?28 of 840,277 depositors in 300 insured banks closed or merged through June 30 received the full amoun' of their deposits, the report continued. Total deposits of these banks were $283,000,000 of which 97 per cent was made available.

21 Injured as Subway-El Express Strikes Brick Tower in New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Twenty-one persons were injured today when a subway-elevated express train from Coney Island Beach split a switch and crashed into a brick tower at the overhead Ocean Parkway station.

Two women were hurt seriously enough to be kept in a hospital overnight, the others only slightly.

As the six-car express sped into the station within sight of Brighton Beach, the front end of the first car passed over the switch but a broken wire caused the rear wheel trucks of the head car to jump over to a parallel set of local tracks, derailing the rest of the train.

At almost a right angle with the rails the car slid about 200 feet before smashing into the brick tower at one end of the concrete station platform and going nearly half way through it. Passengers on the platform were not endangered.

The tower, about 12 feet square and 15 feet high, collapsed when workmen gave it a few pokes, scattering pieces in the street some 25 feet below.

A blaze from broken electrical lines set fire to the railway ties and part of the elevated structure, adding to the panic of the shaken passengers, but the fire was put out in about 10 minutes.

Macarov delivered the president's address at the opening session of the organization's annual convention. Delegates were registered from Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee, North and South Carolina. The convention lasts four days.

Physicians reported he suffered a ruptured lung and other internal injuries.

Five fellow Colorado University summer students carried his broken body on a cot two miles down a mountain trail to the nearest automobile road. He was taken to a Denver hospital.

GEORGIA POWER COMPANY

GORDY TIRE COMPANY'S RECORD SALE ON M'CLAREN TIRES

NOW FEATURING AUTOCRAT TIRES, TOE-ACTION TREAD

Sales During June and July Largest Gordy Concern Has Ever Had.

That motorists are giving more consideration to proper protection from tires which bear the load of their autos, is clearly revealed by the large volume of McClaren tire sales enjoyed by the Gordy Tire Company during June and July.

The Gordy Tire Company has been located at Peachtree and Twelfth street for the past twelve years. In that time it has grown steadily, increasing its volume in tire sales and auto service each year. But Mr. Gordy declares the two months just passed has brought greater volume in McClaren tire sales to his concern than it has ever enjoyed in any two months.

This is due in large part to the popularity of the new Autocrat tire with toe-action tread, which the Gordy Company is featuring. Mr. Gordy may well ask:

"Since accidents cost more than tires, why accept less than the priceless protection of the new Autocrat tire with toe-action tread? Of course," says the head of the concern, "motorists don't want to gamble with sudden disaster when they are high-balling down the highway on 3,500 pounds of modern motor car. They want the protection that our new Autocrat tire with the toe-action tread gives them. That's one of the reasons—in fact, the main reason—why our sales on McClaren tires have been so greatly increased within the past few months. The new Autocrat is the only tire ever built with toe-action tread for emergency, on-line stopping—the only tire with dethermolyzed coolflex body and daytex cord for priceless protection against dangerous stress, strain and stretch."

Mr. Gordy declares that this new Autocrat tire has been tried and tested—it has been proved on mountain roads—in blistering heat—in town traffic—in snow and rain. It is declared that the toe-action tread makes a driver master of the world's fastest straight-line stop as it bites through road film and wipes away water. Its seven safety shoulders backed up by 624 toe-action cogs, hold the curves like flanged wheels on tracks and eliminates dangerous inching—even on sharp turns at high speed.

At the Gordy Tire Company motorists can get a most complete auto service. It employs 15 or more people, all with training and experience in rendering service to motorists. It specializes in washing and lubrication, and in rendering quick service to customers, as is proven by the fact that it operates three special service trucks, going all over the city and surrounding territory.

'WELL, TRY TO FIND OUR NEEDLEWORK'

That's What the Young Women of the Georgia Reweavers Company Say.

"Try to find our needlework" isn't just a blank phrase with Miss Sara Bentley, proprietor of the Georgia Reweaving and Tailoring Company—it's a test of the excellent reweaving work done by a force of nimble and trained fingers at the workshop of this company, located at 22 Cain street, between Spring street and the Henry Grady hotel.

These young ladies who do very needful repairs to clothing are so skilled and experienced when it comes to mending a torn or burned place in a garment—they know so well how to reweave it—that it is near impossible to find the place where the hole was. And they are not so choice about what kind of a garment you bring them—men's suits, coats, pants, ladies' dresses or coats—are all the same to them. The reweaving or mending habit works just as well on one as the other. It makes no difference about the material—they'll take care of that.

In addition a complete line of tailoring is handled by the reweavers, and in both this line and in their invisible reweaving, while their prices are reasonable, they guarantee all work.

So cleverly have these Atlanta young ladies built their business that much of it comes from out the city.

RALPH CANNON HAS INSTALLED STEER-O-MASTER

Latest Machine for Steering Testing and Front-End Wheel Alignment.

Looking to every need of the car owner—providing every mechanical and scientific improvement for the betterment of service to motorists—Ralph Cannon, who, only five months ago opened a complete auto service station on Spring street between Cain and Harris streets, has just installed one of the latest and cleverest machines so far manufactured for front end or wheel alignment trouble.

This machine, shown in the picture herewith, is known as the Steer-O-Master, the only scientific steering testing, front end and wheel alignment apparatus that locates visibly the exact cause of trouble and provides absolute proof of accurate correction. By its operation it insures proper steering, economy in tire wear and safety in driving.

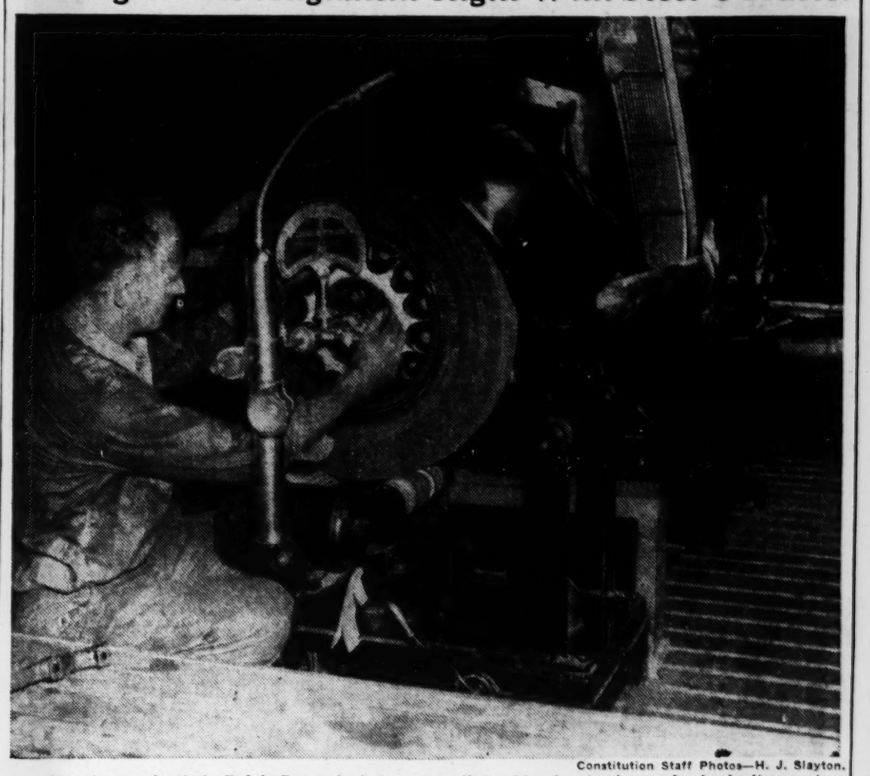

Mr. Cannon has only recently installed this machine, used in several large motor concerns, but his is the only one of its kind installed by an independent operator in Atlanta. So far his experienced mechanics have utilized it for the exact purpose for which it was made, and have found it works exactly as claimed, and the results have been more than satisfactory to a large number of Mr. Cannon's customers who have had their autos put in correct alignment by it.

Considering what the uses of the machine are, the questions naturally arise, "Are you driving comfortably? Safely? Economically?" According to Mr. Cannon a Steer-O-Master test and report will answer these questions for you.

"In ten minutes or less," says Mr. Cannon, "the exact conditions of the steering, front end wheel alignment of your car will be proved to you visibly. Excessive tire wear, hard steering, shimmy, road shock, road wander and wabble cost real money, cause real danger or occasion acute discomfort. We invite our friends and patrons to drive in and let us give their car a once-over with this remarkable machine. We are offering this test as an introductory offer for a limited time only. They will be obligated in no way. We will feel that we have done our part when we show them in a visible way the troubles with their front end wheel alignment, and then, if they desire, we can remedy that trouble in a very brief space of time."

Mr. Cannon, in the few months he has been established at 212 Spring street, has built up a large and appreciative clientele. Car owners have learned that Mr. Cannon himself not only possesses long years of training in the mechanics of automobiles—any kind or type of car—but that he has surrounded himself with a group of about a dozen experienced and skilled mechanics, who can render any sort of service, from the smallest job to practically transforming an old into a new car.

Showing mechanic in Ralph Cannon's Auto Service place, on Spring street, making visible all troubles in steering and wheel alignment, and then remedying the trouble.

He not only guarantees satisfaction and perfection from the results of the Steer-O-Master, this scientific precision instrument that banishes makeshift and guessing methods, but every class of work performed in his big, roomy, well-equipped plant, on any make of car, is done in such a skillful and correct manner that satisfaction is always assured.

Whether it is just a small service, or a large job, or a motor tune-up, which is a specialty with his concern, or any other service required of a complete auto service station, Ralph Cannon and his experienced crew can give it.

KITCHEN CABINETS MADE TO ORDER

Atlanta Cabinet Shop Is Being Kept Busy Now Providing Conveniences.

"A place for everything—and everything in its place," is an old saying that forms the basis for the excellent cabinet work the Atlanta Cabinet Shop, at 591 Edgewood avenue, is furnishing just now to many homes to the delight of the housewives.

The shop, which has been turning out an excellent grade of work in screens and cabinets and shelving, etc., for the past ten years, is expending much of its time and labor in building all manner of cabinets and shelving work for the kitchen, or for any part of the home, so far as that is concerned. Built-in cabinets, with shelving below or above, and with the right kind of shelving inside, is one of the necessary and most needful articles in the kitchen.

Carefully selected lumber, the best of hardware, and workmanship carefully executed, make the cabinets and other woodwork installed by Mr. Street and his force of workmen stand out as among the most conspicuous of cabinet work in the city. The entire kitchen can be measured up and every feature of woodwork or cabinet needed placed just where it belongs and where it will be most convenient. When installed the job is handsomely finished and painted white or any color most desired by the housewife.

A phone call to the concern will bring a representative to figure with the home owner, building a new home, or with the woman who desires fixtures and cabinets installed in her home.

F. D. R. Visits Squalus Scene

Heavy Seas Keep Divers on Surface; Salvage Work Suspended, Possibly Until Tomorrow.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 13. (AP)—President Roosevelt visited today the scene of the temporarily-stalled salvage operations on the U. S. S. Spualus, the cruiser Tuscaloosa dropping anchor less than half a mile from where the sunken submarine was stuck fast on a previously uncharted mud bank.

From the canvas-protected bridge, the chief executive could see the three huge red and white pontoons that supported the water-filled stern of the Squalus, where lie her 26 dead. He missed a glimpse of any of the actual salvage operations, however, as a rolling sea prevented divers from working.

Admiral Cyrus W. Cole, commandant of the Portsmouth navy yard, who has directed the 83-day salvage task, was piped over the side of the Tuscaloosa about half an hour after she dropped anchor at 2:30 p. m. (Atlanta time), departing only when the vessel steamed away to the northeastward an hour and a half later.

He received the President's personal congratulations for the successful completion of the first difficult stage of the salvage task—the lifting of the $4,000,000 Squalus approximately 80 feet off the 240-foot deep sea floor yesterday. The vessel then was towed more than a mile toward shallower water before she stuck fast on an up-jutting pinnacle of mud, where she appeared destined to stay until at least next Tuesday.

Radio From President.

Shortly after the Tuscaloosa left, Admiral Cole, aboard the Falcon, received this radio message from the President:

"Am greatly pleased with the efficiency and arduous service performed by the officers and men of your unit. Well done."

President Roosevelt's visit to the scene broke his leisurely vacation trip to New England and Canadian waters.

U. D. C. CHANGES DATE.

Atlanta chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will sponsor a card party at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, and not on August 23, as previously announced, it was stated yesterday.

Women Must Wait In Mock War, Too

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Even mock warfare drew copious tears today from women waving goodbye (for two weeks) to their soldier men off to the "wars" at Plattsburg, N. Y.

Re-enacting scenes reminiscent of World War days, many women sobbingly embraced khaki-clad national guardsmen entraining at Grand Central terminal.

The embracees, grinning sheepishly, ducked for cover as the crowd cheered their departure.

MRS. W. P. CORBETT, EX-ATLANTAN, DIES

Succumbs in Asheville, N. C., to Heart Attack; Rites Today.

Mrs. Walter P. Corbett, a former resident of Atlanta, died suddenly yesterday morning at Asheville, N. C. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

Mrs. Corbett was the mother of William A. Sutherland and Mrs. Elbert P. Tuttle, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Mac Asbill, a former resident of this city but now of Washington, D. C.

She was born in Coweta county, Georgia, and lived for several years in Jacksonville, Fla. Following the death of her first husband, L. P. Sutherland, Mrs. Corbett moved to Washington, where she made her home for a short time, but later moved to Atlanta, where she lived with her daughter, Mrs. Tuttle, at 61 Palisades road, until her marriage to her present husband, Colonel Walter P. Corbett, of Atlanta and Jacksonville, about five years ago.

By American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 13.—Massachusetts, one of the large states to elect a Republican governor last November, is still predominantly Republican in political sentiment, judging by a special American Institute of Public Opnion survey just completed in the state.

Traditionally Republican in national politics, the Bay State stood out against the Democratic landslide of 1932 but gave Roosevelt a majority of its votes in 1936. Today the Institute finds a Republican trend in the state expressed in the replies of representative Massachusetts voters to the question:

"What party would you like to see win the presidential election in 1940?"

The vote is:

Want Republicans To Win	55%
Want Democrats To Win	45

The state elected its present Republican governor, Leverett Saltonstall, by about the same margin—54 per cent—last November.

The favorite candidate for 1940 among Massachusetts Republicans is Thomas E. Dewey, of New York. The state's young Republican senator in Washington, Henry Cabot Lodge, is likewise popular, running even with Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, as second choice for 1940. The governor, Leverett Saltonstall, also received mention by voters but did not poll enough to put him among the leading seven choices.

The replies in Massachusetts to the question, "Whom would you like to see elected president in 1940?" were:

REPUBLICAN PREFERENCES.

Dewey	45%
Lodge	14
Vandenberg	14
Taft	12
Hoover	8
Landon	2
Bridges	2
Others	3

Among Democrats in the Bay State, the top choices for 1940 in case Roosevelt does not run for a third term are Vice President John N. Garner and Paul V. McNutt, newly appointed federal security administrator. Garner is far in the lead. Also prominently mentioned is Alfred E. Smith, the party's presidential candidate in 1928. Smith's popularity in Massachusetts, particularly in Boston, is such as to put him among the leading four Democratic choices in the survey.

DEMOCRATIC PREFERENCES.

Garner	55%
McNutt	12
Smith	5
Farley	5
Hull	4
Murphy	4
Kennedy	3
Hopkins	3
Others	9

Voters of the state indicate in the survey that they are opposed to a third term for President Roosevelt. Although the President carried the state in 1936, more than three-fifths of the voters are against his re-election today.

Asked, "If President Roosevelt runs for a third term in 1940, will you vote for him?" 36 per cent said "yes," 64 per cent "no."

ASSAULT SUSPECT IS PLACED IN JAIL

Feeling 'Runs High' in Quitman County.

GEORGETOWN, Ga., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Seventeen-year-old Daniel Peterson, Quitman county negro, charged with assault and attempted rape of two white women, was lodged in an undisclosed jail after his capture today, Sheriff W. G. Gay reported.

Gay said Peterson was taken into custody about 15 miles south of Cuthbert, Ga., by a group of Georgia and Alabama officials and state highway patrolmen of both states who had led a four-day search for the negro.

Feeling in Quitman county was described as "running high" by the sheriff.

The two women were reported to have been assaulted on a farm near here Wednesday. About 100 possemen joined in the search for Peterson, Gay said.

Dorothy and Scarecrow in "Wizard of Oz"

Here are two characters in "The Wizard of Oz" who will be reproduced by children of Atlanta Friday morning when the all-technicolor production opens at Loew's Grand theater. Judy Garland represents the storybook character of Dorothy, the little Kansas girl, and Ray Bolger represents the Scarecrow.

$100 CASH OFFERED IN MOVIE CONTEST

Boys and Girls May Enter by Duplicating a Costume in 'Wizard of Oz.'

Have you heard of the wonderful "Wizard of Oz?"

Of course you have! The whole town is talking about that amazing person—and the chance he is bringing for you to win vacation cash without much trouble.

It's something new in contests, too, this opportunity to cash in on ingenuity, offered by Loew's Grand theater and The Constitution.

Plan Outlined.

Briefly, here's the plan:

1. Boys and girls from the age of 16 down are invited to make duplicates of the costumes of three of the leading characters in the new picture, "The Wizard of Oz."

2. Photographs of these characters will appear in The Constitution daily through Friday, when the contest ends.

3. Prizes—including $100 in cash—will be offered for the best costumes.

That's all there is to it!

Three Characters.

The characters whose costumes the boys and girls are invited to match are three of the many lovable folk in this new and different film. They are Dorothy, the little girl heroine of the picture; the Tin Woodsman, a role played by Jack Haley, and the Scarecrow, played by Ray Bolger.

The Dorothy of the film is played by Judy Garland. Notice her picture carefully. Study the details of her costume. Do the same with the others.

Then, when your costume is completed, put it on and come to The Constitution office Friday morning at 10 o'clock. There will be big doings—a grand parade, behind a brass band, to the Henry Grady hotel, where the judging will take place.

Now, a bit of advice regarding colors. Remember that newspaper pictures make red photograph virtually black. White and black photograph as white and black. So avoid clashing colors that will not make a good newspaper reproduction—should your costume be the winning one.

GENE AUSTIN SHOW OPENS WEDNESDAY

Musical Revue To Play Five Nights at Highland Avenue Grounds.

Gene Austin, America's original crooner, brings his own 1939 streamlined revue, "Models and Melodies," to Atlanta for five nights beginning Wednesday at 8:15 o'clock in a tent theater at the Highland Avenue Show Grounds.

A JOB WITH UNCLE SAM

How does one go about getting a federal government job? The answer to that depends upon WHAT job Uncle Sam selects the vast body of his employes by means of civil service examinations. They cover almost every sort of profession, trade, craft and special training that exists in the United States. Other jobs are political in nature, and appointments are made by various administrative and elective officers; in many cases, political recommendations are a prerequisite for consideration. The merit system is slowly but surely gaining ground and more and more federal employes are being placed under it.

Our Service Bureau at Washington has an interesting 24-page booklet "Employment in the United States Government" that tells how employees are selected and appointed, and how to go about seeking a federal government appointment.

LADY OF THE TROPICS

Manon Tells Bill the Cavalcade Has Been Sent For Her By Kim Kahoum

By GERTRUDE GELBIN.

SYNOPSIS.

Bill Carey, traveling through the orient as guest of Lolly Harrison and her millionaire father, meets Manon de Vargnes, beautiful French half-caste in Saigon. Because half-castes are social outcastes, Manon is trying desperately to make Pierre Delaroque, richest and most powerful man in Saigon, get her a passport to France. Delaroque, madly in love with her, refuses; he wants to keep Manon in Saigon. A chance meeting between Bill and Manon results in their dining together at a native cafe where Nina, Manon's friend, sings. Delaroque finds them. He furiously accuses Manon of planning to run away. She denies it, but later confesses to Bill that she is leaving in the morning. Since Bill sails to Singapore with the Harrisons next day, they decide to say good-bye to Saigon together. Bill leaves Manon and Nina together in the cafe and goes out to find a rickshaw. Nina asks hopefully if Bill is rich and influential and can help Manon get her passport. Manon tells her sadly that Bill is nobody—just a poor, unimportant, but nice young man. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT V.

"You are angry?" she whispered.

"Not at all," he retorted.

"Please," she pleaded.

"Well what do you want me to do?" he demanded, his rage mounting. "Jump up and down an dcheer and throw rice?"

"No. But I would like you to understand, Bill."

"There's nothing mysterious about it," he observed icily. "It turns out I've been sort of a bridal escort."

"It was arranged a long time ago," she said gently. "He paid money to my mother. That's why I have these nice clothes. Before I didn't have any."

"I've been doing you an injustice," Bill sneered. "I thought Delaroque had bought them for you."

"Oh, no," she cried. "It was my dowery. "Kim Kahoum is very rich."

"You've said that once."

The cavalcade was now brought to a stop at the landing. One of the turrbanned natives hurried up the gangplank.

"There's one of the magicians looking for you," Bill said sourly. Then he forced a grin on his face and held out his hand. "No hard-ing feelings, Manon. It was a lot of fun, being a bridal escort. Good luck in your gold house in the jungle—with rings on your fingers and bells on your toes—"

The stricken look on her face stopped him.

The turbanned native approach and salaamed to her.

"I am honored," said the native, "to welcome you in the name of our master, Kim Kahoum, who sends his greetings to you. He has instructed me to entertain you at the Temple tonight and to rest until tomorrow. Our master arrives in the morning." He salaamed again. "We are slaves to command."

Manon nodded, then walked slowly to the gangplank. As she reached it and began her descent, an orchestra sitting in one of the bullock drawn carts began to play. And, to the sound of the shrill Oriental music, Manon walked off the boat and toward the caravan, with never a backward glance.

In the moonlight, the Temple dancers performed their ancient, Far Eastern ceremonials for Kim Kahoum's future wife. Manon, resplendent in native dress, watched the festival with expressionless eyes.

A soft call at her elbow made her turn h r head. Her face paled, and her eyes clouded with pain and confusion. "Bill;" she murmured. "Bill—how did you get here—you must go away—at once —"

Bill Carey half knelt in the shadow behind her. "Manon — I must speak to you. I'll wait inside the Temple — near the big door. I'll wait there until you come—"

When the ceremony was over, Manon slipped out to meet him. As she approached him, she broke into a run and all but fell weeping, into his arms. He kissed her happily.

"I never wanted to see you again," he whispered tenderly. "But you pulled me here—with a two-inch cable. And now, Manon, I'm taking you out of this sideshow."

"No, no, I can't go," she wept.

"Why not? Are you in love with this elephant trainer?"

"Oh no, Bill—not in love—"

"Then why, Manon?"

"Because I am only half-Manon. We who are born as I am cannot have what we want. And in Saigon I see the boats go away and my heart goes away on each one. And I stay behind. A little less of me stays behind each day."

"I thought it was something like that," he answered quietly. "Now, listen. And stop arguing, please. You're coming with me. I want you. I want you for keeps."

"For keeps?" she whispered.

"Will you marry me, Manon?"

"You musn't ask me because I want to," she answered gently. "And it is better if I go away. Better to marry Kim Kahoum than to be a wife for a little while in the government register—that is the only way you white men marry our native and half-caste girls—"

"You're signing no government register," he retored. "We'll stand up before a priest. I'm not marrying Kyra Who-sis, the Sultan's delight. I'm marrying Manon de Vargnes and we're sailing off together on the first boat in a bridal suite."

"It's not true," she faltered. "You are being nice."

He held her close. "Manon you're coming with me as my wife in the eyes of God and man and the United States passport bureau."

Two days later, a rapturously happy Manton burst in upon Nina at her hotel in Saigon.

"Manon!" cried Nina. "You've come back!"

Manon dumped an armful of packages gaily on the bed. "I got back an hour ago—on the boat."

Nina burst into tears. "Oh," she wailed, "then Kim Kahoum didn't want you—"

Manon burst into laughter. "Listen, you stupid Nina. I've come back to get married. To the American. Remember him? The American?"

"Bill?" cried Nina.

"Yes," shouted Manon. "Bill—Bill—Bill!" She tore open one of the packages. "Here's a dress for you. Get into it quick—you're going to be my bridesmaid and Bill is waiting—"

"I'm going crazy," muttered Nina.

"No, you're not, you silly dear," Manon laughed. "Quick—get into this dress—Bill is looking for the padre—"

"The padre!" Nina looked as if she would collapse.

"Yes—the padre. We are being married in the Mission — in front of the altar—"

"Then you will get a passport. You will go to Paris—"

"Yes, yes." Manon turned to the closet behind the screen. "Hurry and dress, Nina—I'll look through your hats—you must wear a hat—"

"You'll go to America?" Nina called out to her.

"Yes," bubbled Manon.

"And Manon—do you love him?"

The door burst open. Pierre Delaroque stood on the threshold and stared in at Nina.

"M'sieur Delaroque!" she cried.

"You promised to let me know the moment you heard from Manon," he said curtly.

"But I don't—not a word, M'sieur — "

"But now you have found out," he interrupted flatly.

Nina was frozen with terror.

"Oh, I'm not a magician," he smiled suavely. "I merely heard you talking to someone — who seems to have vanished in the closet behind the screen — "

Manon stepped out of her hiding place. "Not vanished, M'sieur," she said evenly, "only looking for something — "

"Manon!" he devoured her with his eyes. "Where have you been, Manon?"

"I went to visit my mother," she answered.

"You denied you were going—"

"I received word suddenly that she was ill."

"And she is better now?" he questioned softly.

'Oh, yes.'

"And—the American?"

"The American?" She frowned. "The American? You mean M'sieur Carey?"

"Yes."

"He went away," she lied blithely.

He smiled with relief. "I am very glad, Manon. I have been looking for you—desperately. I am not a man who loves easily. Women? Yes. But not like this—not like you—" He took her hand and stared into her face. "Manon. You are rich because you have Paradise to trade. How much for your Paradise. I'll trade everything I own, Manon. Everything. All of Delaroque." He pause ' waiting for her to speak but she was silent. "Don't you understand what I am saying?" He smiled. "Of course not. How could ; ou think Delaroque was asking you to marry him?" He seized her in his arms. "To marry him, Manon. Why don't you answer?" He looked down into her expressionless face. "Manon, marry me," he begged. "I am not fooling. I ask it honorably. It will be better, if you marry me. Better than dreaming like a child of a world you will never see." His face flushed as a determined rage overcame him. "And you will never see that other world, Manon. Never! Never! You belong to the East—to me. I know you want Paris. Well, I have money enough to bring Paris to you. Everything that is beautiful and far away can be brought to you here. Manon—all I am is nothing without you."

He pressed his lips to her unwilling ones.

"Answer me, Manon," he whispered.

"Later," she said softly.

"No—now!"

"Tomorrow, Pierre—"

"No. I don't leave till you tell me, 'yes!' "

The small clock on the mantle struck four. Manon's mind moved fast. Bill was waiting for her at this moment at the Mission with the padre.

"Manon," pleaded Delaroque. "I am waiting. Tell me—yes!"

"Yes," she whispered.

"You said 'Yes,' " he cried. A wildness overcame him. "There are things to be done. We must have a week of festivals—I must go and arrange things at once—"

He kissed her feverishly. "Nina!" he ordered. "You are her lady in waiting. I appoint you. You must guard her—watch her—it is 4 o'clock—at 6 o'clock I will be back—it will all be arranged—"

And in a delirium of joy, he staggered out of the room.

"Manon," whispered Nina. I'm frightened. The lies—"

"Better a little lie now," Manon said evenly, "than a lot of trouble."

"Yes, I know that," Nina said weakly.

"I couldn't tell him the truth, Nina. He might go to the padre and do something to prevent my marriage to Bill. He is very powerful."

"I know," Nina wept. "But he will find out—tonight—"

Cooling Bracers For a Last Rose of Summer Complexion

Stocky Girls Are Hardest Losers

By Ida Jean Kain.

There is nothing fair about it, but the short, stocky person puts on weight with the greatest ease and has to fight off every pound that is lost. Then, when the weight is finally down to normal, a constant curb must be kept on the appetite lest the scales climb again.

All right, suppose we say it isn't worth the struggle . . . suppose you continue to eat as you please and to get fatter and fatter—which you will! Eventually you will come up against a day of reckoning. Your health, as well as your looks, will suffer.

It is with reason that the life insurance companies look upon overweights as poor risks. They form the highest percentage of the sufferers from high blood pressure, heart and kidney diseases, and—to mention a few more—diabetes, gout and arthritis.

The short, stocky person just naturally uses few calories in proportion to weight and the solution is a complete change in living habits. This change, of course, begins with the diet. It is much easier to take fewer calories than it is to use up an excess, and one experience with a diet should convince you of the fact! To reduce, you must hold your calorie intake down to 1,000 per day. That's quite a decrease, considering you may have been taking 3,000 a day! But on this low intake, your daily balance menus provide all the foods you actually need; a liberal serving of lean meat, one or two eggs, one or two glasses of skim milk or buttermilk, fresh fruits, fresh vegetables, a very small portion of butter, two to three slices of whole grain bread.

Since this list, slim as it is, contains all the foods which make for high vitality, reducing does not endanger the good disposition for which you short, chunky people are famous. You can be just as jolly with a little less avoirdupois to carry around—perhaps even more so!

Once your weight is down to normal and you are allowed a more liberal food intake, it would be wise to make the increase in the form of these same foods, particularly in the bulky fruits and vegetables.

Besides changing your diet for keeps, it would be well to try to increase your activity. Most of the easy-going people are positively allergic to physical activity and for a time you may have to follow as rigid a schedule of exercise as you do in diet. It goes without saying that exercise is essential to your health. Also, specific exercise plays the streamlining role in your figure program and makes the difference between merely losing weight and losing it in the right places.

Revive That Life-Is-So-Much-Fun Gleam to Eyes, With Cool Pick-Ups

By LILLIAN MAE.

Perhaps your skin has held up manfully through the dry, sultry days, but judging yours by my own, I suspect that now it is beginning to take on that drab, lifeless midsummer look, coarsened in texture by heat and sun.

Then let me make some suggestions for keeping your beauty calm, cool and collected during this mid-summer season.

Try these two simple steps. First, use a special herbal cleansing cream which soothes, refreshes and cleanses while it animates your skin as well. It softens weather lines and makes skin clear, smooth and radiant, and is so fluffy and light-textured that it won't feel sticky or heavy on even the most sweltering of days.

Follow this with a dash of crystal clear, fragrant herbal skin toning lotion—a delightful skin freshener as well as astringent. Don't you feel ten degrees cooler just reading about it? And this treatment requires not more than five minutes of your busy day.

Another bug-a-boo of summer is the network of tiny squint lines which will very soon become crows' feet.

If you are much in the sun and do not wear dark glasses, you are in for these lines, unless you take time out for "doctoring." There is a refreshing, cool pick-up that I enjoy much these sunny days. It is especially designed for super-dry, sensitive skin and does work miracles in soothing delicate under-eye tissues and restoring that life-is-so-much-fun gleam to dulling orbs.

You merely saturate cotton pads with the cooling lotion and place them over your closed eyes for five to ten minutes—and how like a new woman you feel!

Try this lotion also if your complexion has acquired fatigue lines and a parched, dried-out, drawn appearance. Just pat it briskly over your face and throat at night or in the morning, after cleansing. It will help greatly to keep your skin soft and smooth during the mercury-soaring days we are now experiencing.

Phone me, and I'll be delighted to tell you the names of these items which help to make a summer day so much more liveable. If you do not live in Atlanta write me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Amount of Iron In Milk Is Its One Deficiency

By Dr. William Brady.

Milk has been called the most nearly perfect food because it contains nearly all of the elements necessary to sustain the human body. The newborn infant thrives best on exclusive milk diet for the first six months of life; but after that it is necessary to add other foods to the baby's diet in order to maintain the most vigorous growth and development.

At any rate no other single natural food can compare with milk for all-round nutritive value, nor is any other natural food quite so satisfying as an exclusive diet for infants, children, youths, mature and elderly adults, sick or well.

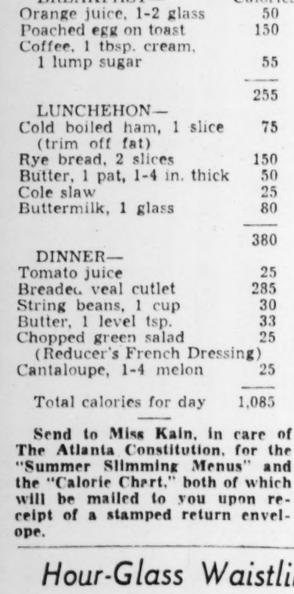

Plain milk, cow's milk or goat's milk, is what milk means here. If availability and cost are disregarded, the choice, in my opinion, is Certified milk. Second choice Grade A raw milk from tuberculin tested herd. Third choice goat's milk. Fourth choice just plain milk delivered by your neighbor or from your own cow—this should be brought to a boil for one minute to make it perfectly safe for any one to drink. Next choice, pasteurized milk. Pasteurizing consists of heating milk to 145 degrees F. for 20 to 30 minutes and then cooling it; par-boiling, in everyday terms. It is rarely or never safe to use nondescript milk raw—it is always perfectly safe to drink it if you boil it for one minute or if you pasteurize it.

Quart of milk yields 650 calories, perhaps 20 grains of calcium (lime—more calcium than there is in a quart of lime water), 22 grains of phosphorus, 22 grains of potassium, about nine grains of sodium, one-thirteenth of a grain of iron. Calcium and phosphorus are essential in building development and repair of most body tissues, notably nerves, bones, teeth. Potassium and sodium form alkaline salts which serve to prevent acid state or rather to maintain neutrality or alkalinity of the blood and tissues. The amount of iron in the milk is the one deficiency in this nearly perfect food; an infant or child needs a quarter of a grain of iron daily. Of course an older child or adult gets more iron from other foods.

Milk in the diet favors the normal growth of lactic bacilli in the colon. The sugar in milk is lactose, milk sugar—about 1 1-2 ounces of it to the quart—besides being the most readily digestible carbohydrate for infant or invalid is the most suitable pabulum for lactic fermentation in the colon. Lactic fermentation prevents the growth of any disease germs which may be present; renders the field unfavorable, so that the harmful germs die out. This is another reason why everybody should take a quart of milk a day. Among many complaints of diseases the liberal consumption of milk helps to prevent, in my judgment, appendicitis deserves prominent mention.

Close Similarity In Declarers' Plays

By Harold Sharpsteen.

In analyzing the play of the vast majority of deals occurring in lively tournament competition, one is quite apt to discover a close similarity in the methods of attack employed by different declarers who play the same hands.

At suit contracts, trumps are either (1) drawn at once, (2) dummy's trumps are utilized separately (3), a cross-ruff is developed.

The same general line of campaign usually seems to prevail, both offensively and defensively.

A LESSON HAND.

Such are the findings, as a rule. But, the following hand, which Robert Darvas says he stumbled onto in the Halcyron Bridge Club, is a decided exception. This hand, packed with possibilities, merits your close scrutiny.

N.
S—
H—A 10 8 3
D—Q 4 3 2
C—A K 7 5 2

S—A 10 8 6 5 3 S—7 2
H—Q J 9 6 4 H—7 5
D—8 D—K J 10 7
C—8 C—Q J 10 9 4

S.
S—K Q J 9 4
H—K 2
D—A 9 6 5
C—6 3

PLAYED AT DIAMONDS.

Defeated at various contracts, four diamonds appeared the most consistent spot for North-South to play the hand, with West opening lead the Club 8.

Unless declarer is extremely careful, he may be defeated one trick, at four diamonds. With ordinary caution, however, four diamonds should be made.

Depending on declarer's plan of play, five odd should be made against ordinary defense, yet, five odd can be defeated.

Following a still different line of defense, opponents can not stop five diamonds.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE.

So depending upon declarer's play, four odd is possible; four odd is sure; five odd is possible; five odd can be defeated; five odd is sure, and six odd is not impossible.

Thorough analysis of this deal is worth your time and effort.

Be satisfied first to make four diamonds against any defense.

Tomorrow we will again review the deal, at a contract of five diamonds made, yet possible to defeat.

It does sound wierd, but wait.

'Till tomorrow . . .

Weaving Arts Flourished In Holland

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

Most of us think of the little boy who put his finger in the dike when we're called upon to remember any Dutch history. Actually the story of the Netherlands in the Renaissance has so much to do with the way we live to this day that it wouldn't hurt us a bit to go back and reread a few chapters in our medieval and modern history book.

IMPORTED WORKMEN.

For it was here that the great weaving arts flourished, notably the development of Flemish tapestries—still superb sources of stitches and motifs. Here too fine leathers for upholstery were perfected. In wood carving and inlaying of marquetry, the Flemish and the Dutch likewise excelled. As a matter of fact, workmen in all these crafts were imported to the other European countries because of their skill. Naturally they were to have a wide influence over Europe, especially the mood of placid domesticity that pervaded Dutch furniture and the Dutch genius for intricate marquetry.

The Flemish Renaissance developed around 1500 from Italian stimulus, and it was accelerated by the activities of early Dutch traders who plied back and forth from the orient. Before this new impetus (or boom!) hit the Netherlands, furniture had been mostly a part of the house itself—with cupboards, wardrobes and even beds built into the walls—(by contrast with the early furniture in most of the other European countries which was made to move from place to place.) Right now, in Holland you will find occasionally a bed built into the wall and complete with a door to close it up like a closet. But with the Renaissance came a trend toward furniture that was separate from the actual structure of the house. Even these beds are amazing to contemporary eyes—massive affairs on high platforms and with a roof and huge colonades. And always draped heavily to keep out dangerous night air.

If all of this sounds remote from your current scene, you have only to recall that it was the Dutch who first started making comfortable chairs. For with all the magnificent opulence of the Renaissance there was hardly a chair fit to sit on . . . judged at least by present standards of ease. The Dutch cabinet makers, with their simple more domestic ideas, began shaping chair frames more to the human figure and the English in the following period, influenced strongly by the cabinet makers from the Netherlands, took up the idea eagerly and before long they had developed a chair that really conformed to the human figure . . . and which incidentally we haven't been able to surpass to this day.

When you see the French term "Petits Fours" on the menu, you will know it means fancy biscuits or small iced cakes.

Good Manners Insure Poise, Popularity

How perplexing life can seem to the girl who is starting to have dates, to go to formal parties!

Even a movie date brings up etiquette questions. Does the girl go first at the entrance where the ticket-taker stands? How embarrassing to hesitate!

By learning etiquette rules you can avoid such uncomfortable moments. You feel poised, sure of yourself when you know it's correct for the girl to go first at the movie entrance, for the man to follow with the tickets.

Inside the theater, you follow the usher down the aisle, go into a row of seats first. Or if there is no usher, the man goes ahead to find a seat, but allows you to enter the row first.

At formal dances—how it boosts your morale to know the correct thing to do. You give a charming impression as you first greet your hostess, "Good evening, Mrs. Gregory," and then turn to your beau to have the first dance together, as is correct.

When you are introduced to a man you know it's your place to start the conversation. And you don't make such blunders as refusing to dance with one man . . . then whirling off with another. You wait for a little while.

Another error to avoid is giving an invitation to only one of two people you are talking to. Include both or give your invitation when you are alone with the one you wish to invite.

Make your etiquette top-grade! Our 40-page booklet, ETIQUETTE FOR THE TEENS, gives the correct, sophisticated thing to do at dances, theaters, restaurants, on dates, when motoring, visiting, entertaining, dining. Tells how to make introductions, answer formal invitations—appear poised in every social situation.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, ETIQUETTE FOR THE TEENS, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

MY DAY — Ginger Rogers Does Her Stuff

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK—I entirely forgot to tell you about a most frivolous entertainment we went to the other night. Ginger Rogers is one of the young movie stars who came to Washington for one of the birthday balls, and I liked her very much. When we heard that her picture, "Bachelor Mother," was on, some of us went to Poughkeepsie to see it. The movie seems an impossible story, but it is amusing and charmingly done.

Another short film, "The Giant of Norway," was shown and it impressed me very much. It briefly tells the work done by Nansen for refugees under the League of Nations. I remember meeting Mr. Nansen on various occasions. You felt that he was suited to an outdoor life of adventure and, above all, he was an outdoor type of person. Yet he spent years of his life at a desk: interminably talking in diplomatic terms to people who diplomatically desired to do little or nothing. It is a big sacrifice to ask of any man, and yet thousands of people who do not even know his name, have blessed the work he did on their behalf.

I have a letter from a lady who puts me on the spot for my suggestion that we ask our representatives questions which will keep them working on this question of peace. She mentions also Clarence Street's book, "Union Now" and asks what I think of it. The answer is I think it grand. But the trouble with the work we have all been doing as private citizens, in organizations, as public officials, or as writers, is that all our good ideas usually reach the ears only of people who don't need them at all. We, in the United States, don't need to be told that we want peace, and yet how are the things which we have to say, to reach the ears of the people of the world who are either carrying on a war or putting the major part of their effort into preparations for war?

Of course, I would keep right on urging the leaders in every peaceful nation to continue asking the nations of the world to come together and discuss their basic antagonisms and difficulties. It seems to me that, if enough people insist upon this and a meeting is called, attended by those nations who are willing to talk things over, some word, in spite of all efforts at censorship, will seep through to the people of every nation. It will be more difficult to make the people of belligerent nations, therefore, believe that the rest of the world is opposed to meeting together for discussion of mutual difficulties.

I do not think meetings should be held for the purpose of criticizing other nations or for stimulating new hatreds. I think any meetings held should have as an underlying principles the idea that we are going to eliminate, even at great sacrifice to ourselves, the difficulties which bring about antagonisms and eventually war. Everyone agrees that war today will leave no victors and means only the postponement of necessary economic changes which will eventually have to be made under even more difficult conditions. And yet we do nothing.

On Set, Zorina's a Little Girl With Untidy Hair

By Sheilah Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 13.—"On Your Toes." "Eddie, you're dying," says Director Ray Enright to Eddie Albert. "You said it," says the latter in an exhausted voice. He is sprawled on a settee, dead to the world. He has just finished a ballet dance with Zorina. The dance will be "shot" tomorrow. But Albert has to be exhausted today. That's the way movies are made.

Zorina has to rush in to the dressing room and drag Albert back to the stage for a bow. But before she can get her first hold, the cameraman shouts—"Zorina, comb your hair!" She may be a star to her public but on the set she is just a girl with untidy hair. And without a murmur, she obeys the Chinese cameraman.

"Remember the Night." . . . Barbara Stanwyck is smothered in mink as she waits for her cue on the sound stage sidelines. "You look hot," I tell her. "I am hot," says Barbara. "I've been sitting in my furs three days now, but it makes me hotter to keep taking them off and putting them on. Oh, well," concludes Barbara philosophically, "it's one swell way to reduce." (Another way to reduce is living in the Stanwyck-Taylor valley home. "We can't sell it," says Mrs. Bob. "It's too gol-darned hot out there.")

I ask Miss Stanwyck for her future picture plans. "I want to be in the next De Mille picture." she replies (dealing with the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police). "I don't quite see you as the moll of a mountie," says this reporter. "I've had good practice for it," replies Barbara, who vacationed in Canada two years ago. "Barnsey (her companion-hairdresser) and I used to haunt the barracks every day and all day." "What about Mr. Taylor—or didn't you know him then?" I want to know. "Oh yes," confesses Mrs. Taylor, "I'd known him a year then, but I figured he wasn't sitting home doing nothing!" As a matter of truth, he was.

"Here I am a Stranger." . . . Brenda Joyce has replaced Nancy Kelly in the screen affections of Richard Greene. Says the latter: "It's nice to work with such an unaffected girl. I prefer Brenda to the slinky, exotic, foreign type." Greene wears a steel brace to protect his injured leg, but you don't notice it unless he is tired. "The brace makes me a better dancer," says Richard. "I was too loose before!"

The Britisher claims that his enforced rest of 10 weeks has proved beneficial to his acting. "It gave me my first chance since coming here to think over my movie failings. I'm relaxing more now. To relax is the hardest and the most important screen 'must.' Take Muni and Gable—watch how relaxed they are. It's the secret of their success."

Before leaving the set, I discover another secret—but of unpopularity. Miss Joyce's stand-in, Jo Brimmer, has two claims to attention. She is the niece of Richard Dix and for two years toiled as the stand-in of a certain Constance Bennett.

Contrary to the rule that no man is a hero to his valet, the star is usually a heroine to her stand-in. But not in this case, for the simple reason that during the entire two years of Miss Brimmer's standinship for Miss Bennett, the latter did not utter a single word, pleasant or otherwise, to her stand-in.

Man Wants Wife Who Meets His Requirements

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I lost four years of my youth due to a crippling accident which necessitated my complete rehabilitation. At the end of this time my father was killed in a mine and shortly afterward my mother died and then one by one my sisters got married which left me utterly alone. Since then I have employed a housekeeper and lived the best I could which is a lonely life. Fortunately I have a good paying position that keeps me busy most of the day.

I am scared to death of the modern girl because I was brought up under strictest conditions and I don't think any of them have been. In spite of my handicap I want to get married and I'm asking you if you think I'm asking too much. First, I want a wife who hasn't had a fair chance in life, one who is alone and hasn't anybody to turn to, I wouldn't be satisfied with any woman who wasn't a good housekeeper and a neat dresser and she should have the patience of Griselda. Naturally she must be healthy in view of my handicap.

If she hasn't had it her way in life the chances are she would be kind and understanding as I have discovered that people who don't get the breaks are usually more tolerant than those who do. Please remember I am 25 and haven't much time to lose and I would like some advice as to how to proceed. LONELY.

Answer: Friend, your spirit is wonderful; your philosophical attitude toward life admirable and your pipe dream beautiful. But getting down to brass tacks, a man that's strong and able bodied, a man who can run around like a shifting engine has to take the sort of wife that's available and say thank you for her. You will have to do the same. The glorious feature of this compromise business is that once you fall in love you don't know you are compromising until it's too late to go back on the bargain.

You will have to skip the young moderns and choose a partner who is nearly your age if you expect to get the irreducible minimum of values and virtues; because the youngsters have their minds on going places and seeing things which might tax you beyond endurance.

Although it might flatter your ego to have a wife who had nobody but you to turn to, it would be exceedingly foolish for you to pass up marriage because you couldn't find an orphan. As for health and housekeeping ability, neatness and patience, they are your irreducible minimum and all around you there are spinsters pushing 35 who will fill this bill and grab at the opportunity.

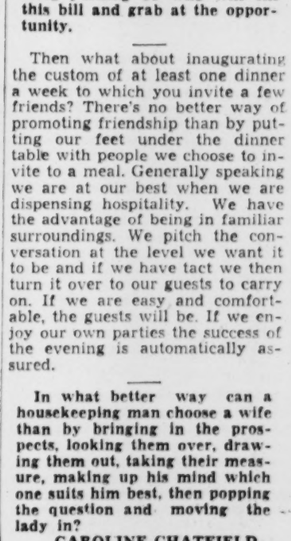

Then what about inaugurating the custom of at least one dinner a week to which you invite a few friends? There's no better way of promoting friendship than by putting our feet under the dinner table with people we choose to invite to a meal. Generally speaking we are at our best when we are dispensing hospitality. We have the advantage of being in familiar surroundings. We pitch the conversation at the level we want it to be and if we have tact we then turn it over to our guests to carry on. If we are easy and comfortable, the guests will be. If we enjoy our own parties the success of the evening is automatically assured.

In what better way can a housekeeping man choose a wife than by bringing in the prospects, looking them over, drawing them out, taking their measure, making up his mind which one suits him best, then popping the question and moving the lady in?

Georgia Belle Begins Internship At Touro Infirmary, New Orleans

ALWAYS alert for news of prominent Georgians, Sally is interested to learn that the medical profession has a new feminine member in the person of Dr. Martha Jane Warren, of Hartwell. The gifted young medico recently began her internship at the well-known Touro infirmary, in New Orleans, La., having graduated in June from the University of Georgia medical school. Incidentally, the young Georgian was one of two feminine students receiving diplomas from the institution!

Martha Jane is following in the footsteps of her brother, Dr. J. E. Warren, who also graduated from the state university medical school, having received his diploma last year. A superlative student throughout his enrollment at the university, Dr. Warren is now resident physician at Charity Hospital, in New Orleans.

It is characteristic of Martha Jane that she has been outstanding in every phase of her scholastic career. At the age of 16, the belle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark T. Warren, graduated from Hartwell High School with first honors, being the youngest and smallest member of a class of 85! Her freshman year at college was spent at Stetson University, in Deland, Fla., after which she entered the University of Georgia, studying for a B. S. degree.

During her enrollment at the state university, where she was a popular coed, Martha Jane held membership in Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Kappa Phi, outstanding honorary scholastic societies. Between school terms the brilliant young Georgian did creditable work in the Baptist Student Union in the north Georgia section.

When Martha Jane received her diploma from the college in Athens, she was awarded a fellowship to Emory University, where she graduated a year later with a master of science degree. It was then that she decided to follow the example set by her brother and enter the field of medicine.

Sally joins the feminine Dr. Warren's many friends throughout the state in wishing her success in her chosen profession.

WHEN Rubye Hill Wilson, of Americus, enrolled for a course in flying at the airport in her "home town," she never suspected that Andrew McIllwraith, her capable instructor, was to be her future bridegroom! The couple's betrothal was announced recently by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Wilson, of Sumter county, and the marriage will take place on August 31 in Aurora, Ill.

Aeronautics will continue to figure prominently in the couple's romance, for Rubye, accompanied by her mother, arrives in Atlanta on August 20 to board the Chicago-bound plane taking off from Candler field.

The marriage ceremony will take place at the home of the groom-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. McIllwraith, in Aurora, after which the bridal couple will reside in Chicago, where Andrew is connected with the American Airlines.

Bobby Riggs Defeats Frankie Parker To Take Rye Finals

All in the GAME

by Jack Troy

Joe Engel is a lot like a Florida hurricane or a Texas cyclone.

When he blows into towns things start happening.

Last time the Lookouts were here Engel was vacationing in Florida. The Lookouts dropped three in a row.

Engel blew in Saturday and within 10 minutes had a microphone by the throat and was telling Atlanta fans—

(1) We're going to take three straight. (It rained yesterday and the Lookouts left with one win.)

(2) Atlanta isn't going to finish in the first division.

(3) Memphis isn't going to win the pennant because of Chattanooga.

(4) And all Atlanta fans are invited to Chattanooga for the Dixie series.

Engel was a bit effervescent after a dull interlude. Not much has been heard from the Barnum of the Bushes in the past month.

"Somebody please take me by the hand and tell me," Engel implored, "how that rumor got out about selling the Chattanooga ball club?

"The fellows they linked with the purchase owe me money."

Engel made a couple of pertinent remarks about selling Nicholson for $35,000 and two Sanford rookie pitchers for $10,000 and asked if anyone was credulous enough to think he was going to part with a gold mine. He sold $60,000 worth of players last year and got Nicholson in the Dee Miles sale.

It so happens that Engel gathers enough potatoes off player sales each year to keep the Chattanooga outfit in good financial standing regardless of attendance. Both Letchas and Benjamin have been sold to the Phillies for fall delivery.

Engel tried giving the fans a good first-division club this year; next year he plans to turn on the Barnum business again. He has come to the conclusion that added attractions are more attractive in the mountains than winning baseball.

And events of this year in Chattanooga seem to bear him out. Maybe Chattanooga fans have forgotten how dull it was before Engel came along. Right now, Engel is leading the cheers for the Lookouts to finish in the first division. Their chances are good.

HE LIKES RUCKER.

Engel thinks Rucker's superior speed will be the deciding factor in his battle with Babe Young, Knoxville, for the Southern league batting title, provided Calvin Chapman or Bert Haas, Nashville, don't spurt and top them both.

"That Rucker can beat out enough hits to bat .300. And in a close contest for batting honors, this counts a lot. Young is no speed merchant by any stretch of the imagination.

"By reason of speed alone, I think Rucker will top Young," Engel said.

Rucker is such an outstanding prospect that Engel freely has talked him up among major league acquaintances.

Joe thinks he ought to be sold now.

When it was suggested Rucker was improving all the time, Engel shouted:

"Do you mean to stand there and say he's going to be better than a .350 hitter when he grows up? Listen, he's hitting better than .350 now. He can't be any better than that."

Well, time will tell, Joe; time will tell. He was off to a slow start this season.

DEMPSEY IS ONLY HOPE.

If Jack Dempsey will agree to be the third man in the ring, Atlanta fans will see a return bout between Ben Brown and Teddy Yarosz. Otherwise, Pittsburgh is certain to get the match.

The Smoky City will make it worth $4,000 for Brown to meet Yarosz in Pittsburgh. The fans want the match. But Atlanta fans are entitled to see it.

By wire and special delivery letter, Dempsey Saturday was urged to come here September 15 to referee a return fight. And within a day or two it definitely will be known whether or not he can accept.

"Dat cutie, Yarosz, is a swell fighter.

"He t'rows a punch, backs away and lives to fight an'udder day," Mumbling Sam charges.

"Well meet dat sweetie anywhere, any time. It'd be a pleasure to fight him once't a day and twice on Sunday. He's not even a good sparrin' pa'tner for Ben."

Most significant is the fact that Atlanta fans still are talking about the fight.

ALICE MARBLE EASILY BUMPS SARAH FABYAN

Loss Is Frankie's First on Grass This Season; Baseline Battle.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Bobby Riggs and Alice Marble, champions of Wimbledon, staged successful defenses of their Eastern Grass Court tennis titles today, Riggs defeating Frankie Parker, of Pasadena, Cal., 1-6, 6-4, 6-4, 7-5 and Miss Marble following with a 6-4, 6-4 triumph over Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, of Brookline, Mass.

Riggs and Parker, America's singles hopes in the forthcoming Davis Cup defense, tossed all vestige of cup brotherhood into the discard, as they engaged in a savage four-set baseline struggle that was eventually decided by Bobby's occasional sorties to the net.

Parker, suffering his first setback of the summer on grass, was too cautious in his advances to the barrier. He rarely rushed to the forecourt unless he was certain Riggs was out of position. Riggs, on the other hand, moved in more often, and nullified most of Parker's effectiveness at counter-attacking with sharply angled top volleys that caught Frankie stranded in backcourt.

The one uniform weakness evident in the play of both was their inability to hold service. Each yielded nine times, although Riggs was the culprit only five times after the first set to Frankie's eight. Bobby dropped the initial stanza in 10 minutes, losing all four of his services.

Riggs came back later to team with Elwood T. Cooke, of Portland, Ore., in the doubles final, but their bid for the title failed as the "pick-up" team of Gene Mako and Gardnar Mulloy came through with a 7-5, 6-8, 6-3, 6-1 victory for the championship.

Miss Marble, by taking the women's singles today, collected a pair of titles in the tournament. She and Mrs. Fabyan paired yesterday to win the women's doubles by downing Dorothy May Bundy, Santa Monica, Cal., and Mary Arnold, Los Angeles, 6-4, 7-5.

STATE NET MEET SLATED TO OPEN THIS AFTERNOON

Gillespie Top Seeded; 41 Matches on Tap Today and Tonight.

Top seeding in the annual Georgia state tennis tournament which gets under way this afternoon at Northside goes to Campbell Gillespie.

Following Gillespie is Don Buffington, another local star. Third seeded is Alex Guerry, Sewanee graduate and Tennessee state finalist. Then in order come Dick Morris, John Hyden, Malon Courts, Bill Farmer, and Walton Larsen.

Among the 41 matches scheduled for this afternoon and tonight are several which might produce

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Rain halted play in the Alabama tennis tournament today, with Joe Davis, Nashville, leading Campbell Gillespie, Atlanta, in finals of the men's singles. The southeastern conference champion was ahead, 6-1, 6-1, with the third set tied at 7-all when the rains came.

something interesting. Like history, the luck of the draw repeats itself in pitting top-seeded Gillespie against Red Enloe. Exactly the same first round match was scheduled in the city tourney.

Don Buffington may have trouble with aggressive Red Hill, Yellow Jacket ace.

Two unseeded stars, Walter Burk and Jimmy Halverstadt, will battle on the number one court at 7 o'clock. Burt last week annexed the Decatur title and is considered an outstanding prospect. Halverstadt is a past winner of the city title and shook a bit of the tournament rust off of his game in the recent city meet. When right, Halverstadt is one of the most dangerous contenders in local net circles.

Draw for the junior singles will be made today at noon and entries will be received up to that time.

The schedule for today follows:

Parker Hall Signs Cleveland Contract

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The Cleveland Rams of the National professional football league announced the signing of Parker Hall, big and fast University of Mississippi backfield star. He was the Rams' first choice in the National league draft last December. Contract terms were not announced.

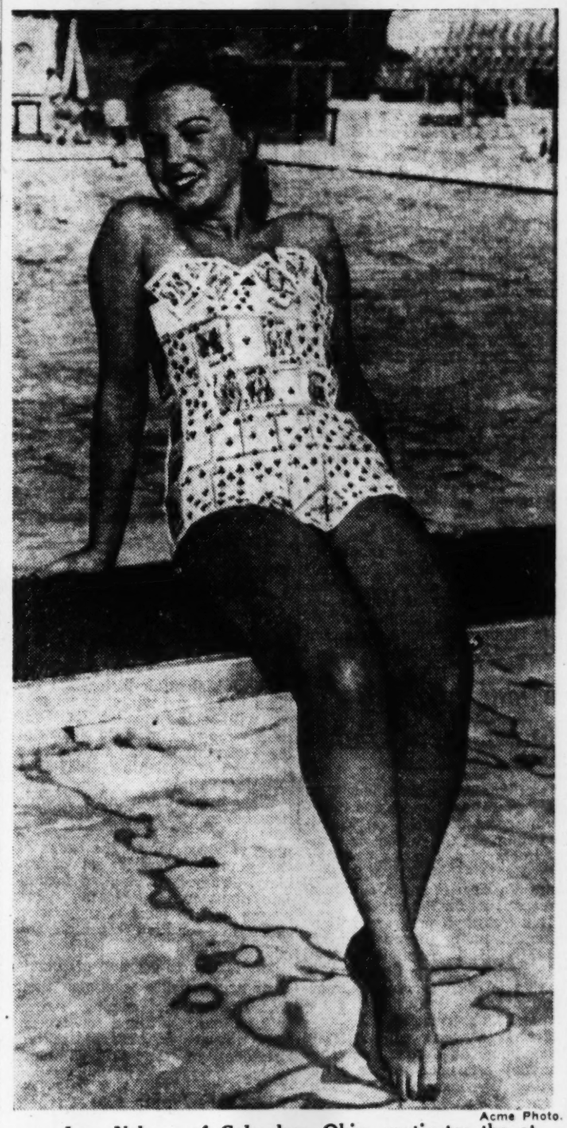

The 203-pound Mississippian, who scored 10 touchdowns and 6 extra points last season, is in Chicago for practice with the National Collegiate All-Stars, who will play the New York Giants August 30. He will report immediately after that contest.

Newspaper Golfers Will Qualify Today

Qualifying rounds for Atlanta's annual newspaper golf tournament will be played today and Tuesday over the No. 2 East Lake course. There will be 18 holes in the preliminary round and either day may be used for the 'nitial test.

Match play begins Wednesday and the first round must be completed by Friday. There will be no play on the course Saturday or Sunday. Match play will be resumed and completed during the week of August 21-25.

CHICKS, PEBS SPLIT.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Lew Krausse's masterful pitching today spoiled the Memphis Chicks' efforts to sweep their sixth straight double-header and Little Rock won the second game, 1 to 0. The Chicks took the opener, 8 to 4.

A fifth-inning double by Tom Irwin scored the Travelers' only run on the nightcap—enough to cheat big Herman Besse out of his 17th victory in spite of a five-hit hurling performance. The Chicks had the tieing and winning runs on base in the seventh, but Krausse's crafty hurling sent three batters down without damage.

The Chicks open a 10-day road trip tomorrow at Atlanta.

3 TIE FOR LEAD AT PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Three of the nation's leading professionals—Gene Sarazen, of East Brookfield, Conn.; Denny Shute, of Huntington, W. Va., and Ralph Guldahl, of Madison, N. J.—battled through heavy showers and treacherous winds today to deadlock with four-day totals of 287 for 72 holes in the $10,000 Dapper Dan Open golf tournament.

The three will play 18 holes tomorrow for first prize of $2,500, second money of $1,250 and third of $1,000.

Undaunted by the heavy rains a gallery estimated by tournament officials at 7,000 jammed the Wildwood Country Club fairways as the leaders teed off.

HENRY NEARING PEAK FOR BOUT

POMPTON, LAKES, N. J., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Henry Armstrong, boss of the lightweights and welterweights, boxed two rounds each with Frankie Wallace, Cleveland welter and Lew Feldman, of Brookland, here today and he convinced some ringside experts that he was rapidly nearing the peak of condition for his world's lightweight title defense against Lou Ambers at Yankee stadium a week from Tuesday.

Manager Eddie Mead said he was satisfied with "Homicide" Henry's condition.

He will continue boxing Tuesday afternoon. Armstrong weighed 137 1-2 pounds.

HURLING DUTIES TO BE HANDLED BY POINDEXTER

Elements Cost at Least 5,000 in Attendance; Twin Bill Tomorow.

By JACK TROY.

Just as the Lookouts and Crackers were preparing to play yesterday, after a delay of 30 minutes, one big downpour of rain washed out the scheduled doubleheader. Descending in torrents, the rain flooded Ponce de Leon and made play impossible.

Chattanooga isn't scheduled here again this season and so the games are lost. The elements cost at least 5,000 in attendance.

The league-leading Memphis Chicks, featuring an all-star pitching staff, open a four-game series tonight, starting at 8:30. Jennings Poindexter is Manager Paul Richards' choice for the opener.

TWIN BILL TUESDAY.

A double-header is scheduled Tuesday night followed by a single game Wednesday night. Little Rock comes next, playing a single game Thursday night, when the Calvacade of Baseball will be presented, and a double-header Friday night. Saturday is an off day and a Sunday double-header with the Knoxville Smokies will end the home stand.

Barring a miracle, the Chickasaws, opening here tonight, have a deadlock on the pennant. Frank Brazill's club consistently has had the best pitching.

The club has a strong center line, with such catchers as Gautreaux and Epps; pitchers like Besse, Heusser, Doyle and Stout; out fielders such as Rikard, Bates and Eckhardt and a steady infield of Piet, Maxcy, Bush and Reese.

The Chicks have had their share of hard luck this season, having had Besse, Eckhardt, Maxcy, Rickard and Rose out of action at times.

CHOKE OFF VOLS.

The league leaders choked off Nashville when the Vols had pennant fever and they have won the majority of the close ball games. Pitching wins pennants and the Chicks are now engaged in winning the one for '39 with the best balanced mound corps the league has seen in some time.

The Crackers have an excellent chance of finishing second. And if, by some chance, they could knock off the Chicks four in a row, the feat would revive their pennant chances which right now are extremely remote.

Cortes, Wattigny May Become Active.

Manager Paul Richards is toying with the idea of putting both Rene Cortes and Ulysses Wattigny, young New Orleans pitchers signed off New Orleans' sandlots, on the active list this week.

Cortes pitched to batting practice yesterday and impressed Richards with the amount of stuff he has. There is a good chance he will pitch some games.

Wattigny, tall right-hander, has been with the club most of the season. He has been carried on trips and used in batting practice to give him needed experience. He, too, may be sent to the firing line.

If both rookies should be added, Dewey Williams, who is recovering from a throat infection, would remain idle for the balance of the season.

The status of Bob Durham for the balance of the season will be known today. Bob has recovered from appendix trouble and will be eligible for reinstatement Wednesday.

Rogers Hornsby Will Be Replaced At Baltimore, Belief

BALTIMORE, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The Sun says Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Baltimore Orioles of the International league, will be replaced next year by his present assistant, Tommy Thomas.

Hornsby will continue in charge of the club until the end of the current season, the paper said.

"Regardless of reports to the contrary, the move to change managers was made because of the size of Hornsby's contract," the Sun said. "The club is said to have decided that $10,000 yearly is too heavy a burden."

Apple a Day Adage Fails, Golfer Kayoed

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 13.—(UP)—The adage that an apple a day will keep the doctor away failed James Mackin.

While playing golf at the Winona Country Club he was knocked unconscious for 10 minutes—by an apple.

Mackin was standing under an apple tree preparing for a pitch shot to the green when someout behind him drove a ball through the branches of the tree, knocking loose a large appie. It struck Mackin on the head.

Charlie Dannals Beats Tommy Barnes, 4 and 3, To Take Title

Home Runs by Cards Beat Reds in Double-Header, 4-2, 4-3

WINNER FIVE UP ON TOM BARNES FOR NINE HOLES

Champion First To Hold Open and Amateur in Same Year.

By ROY WHITE.

Charlie Dannals Jr., from the Capital City Country Club, is king of Atlanta's golfers.

Shooting spectacular golf under adverse conditions, Dannals defeated Tommy Barnes, a former city open and amateur champion, 4-3, Sunday afternoon on the water-logged Druid Hills course to win Atlanta's annual amateur championship tournament.

Dannals won Atlanta's open crown in May on the Capital City course, and his city amateur victory Sunday gave him Atlanta's two major championships and the only player to win both big tournaments the same year. Both Tommy Barnes and Dr. Julius Hughes have held the two crowns, though they were won in different years.

ALWAYS THREAT.

Knocking at the championship door for several years with the most perfect golf shots in the city, Dannals was easily the best golfer on the Druid Hills course this week. He started strong and finished in a blaze of glory to become the only player to win both major crowns the same year.

Trailing the four medalists—Scott Hudson Jr., Luke Barnes, Gerrard Allen and Charlie Black Jr., by 2 strokes—with a 73 and 1 stroke back of Barnes in the qualifying round Wednesday, Dannals began mowing down all opposition with a 5-4 victory over Billy Street in the first match Thursday with a subpar round.

The Capital City star entered Sunday's championship battle five strokes under par, although Barnes was 4 strokes under regulation figures through the semi-finals.

SHOOTS 34.

Continuing his great play, Dannals shot a 34, 2 strokes under par, and was 5 up on Barnes at the end of nine holes Sunday morning. Barnes had failed to win a single hole during the first nine.

The heavy rain set in at nine and the last nine holes of the morning round was played between showers.

Dannals made probably the greatest shot of the tournament at the long par five dogleg fifth hole. His second shot was in the creek, just short of the green. He elected to play the shot, rather than lose a stroke, since the ball was lying in some tall grass. Charlie pitched out onto the green and the ball rolled into the cup for an eagle three, and it gave him a three-up advantage, and what looked to be the beginning of the end for Barnes.

WINS 14TH.

Barnes won his first hole at 14, where he made a great pitch shot out of a trap and sank a long putt for a birdie. He won the 16th with a birdie and went into the final 18 holes, four down, after winning the 18th hole with a 30-foot putt and a birdie four.

Both players had 32 putts for the 18 holes. Dannals had a medal of 73, one over par and the first time during the week he was over par. Barnes had a medal of 77, five strokes over, despite two birdies on the back nine.

The heavy rain shortly before 2 o'clock delayed the final 18-hole round some 20 minutes.

Barnes gained a hole back at one with a par, after both drives had found the rough. Barnes picked up at two after Dannals played a fine second shot to the green.

Dannals lost the third as his second was short in the water, covering the fairway in front of the green. He came back with a win of four, but lost the seventh with a bogey.

THREE UP.

Dannals entered the final nine holes of the match, three up and was still one under par for the week. He continued to shoot par golf, despite the heavy greens and picked up a hole at 10. He lost the 13th with a bogey but closed out the match with two fine pars.

Three one-putt greens were most important to Dannals in the afternoon round.

Dannals' victory was well deserved. He played by far the best golf of the week and though most of Sunday's match was played in the rain, he was still even par for the week's play and that added to his fine play in the open in May was plenty good enough to win both Atlanta's major crowns with strokes to spare.

DEAN IS HIT HARD BUT BEATS BUCS; GIANTS TIE MARK

Bees Down Dodgers Twice; Carl Hubbell Hurls 4-Hit Ball.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The second-place Cardinals sliced two games off the Cincinnati pennant-hungry Reds' National league lead when Pitcher Morton Cooper's home run gave the Cards a 4-to-3 victory in the second game of yesterday's double-header, after Curt Davis won his sixteenth victory of the season in the opener, 4 to 2. The double setback before 40,807 wild spectators cut Cincinnati's margin to 6 1-2 games.

The Giants went on a home-run spree to sweep a double-header from the Philadelphia Phils, who had taken two previous games in the series. After winning the opener, 11 to 2, with seven home runs the Giants captured the nightcap, 6 to 2, with home runs by Mel Ott and Joe Moore and Carl Hubbell's four-hit hurling. The Giants also made seven homers in one game against the Cincinnati Reds June 6.

Frank Demaree hit two of the New York circuit blows in the first game. The first in the first inning and the other with one on in the third. Zeke Bonura, Alex Kampouris, Bill Lohrman and Joe Moore each hit one in the fourth, and Bob Seeds added the finisher in the sixth.

The Phillies' two runs also came through a home run, Merrill May's with one on in the sixth.

At the time the Giants made the seven homers against the Reds this was the major league record, but the New York Yankees, of the American league, made in eight in a game with the Philadelphia Athletics June 28. The Yanks also made five in the second game that same day to set a major league mark for home runs in two consecutive games.

Dizzy Dean made one of his periodic comebacks and, despite 10 Pittsburgh hits, gave the Chicago Cubs a 5-to-4 victory over the Pirates to sweep the three-game series before 25,180 fans.

In his first start since August 1, when he walked off the mound after three innings with a recurrence of his arm ailment, Dean was hit hard in the early frames, but his slow stuff was effective with Pirates aboard in the late frames. His mates bunched 11 hits off Bob Klinger.

The Boston Bees took both ends of a double-header from the Dodgers, taking the first 13 to 6 with a 17-hit attack and the second 8 to 2 with another 13-hit outbreak. Joe Sullivan held Brooklyn to six hits in the nightcap.

CARDS 4-4; REDS 2-3.

Miss Stevens Reveals Marriage to Sabin

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—(AP)—Mildred Stevens, 20-year-old Los Angeles tennis player, has disclosed her marriage at Miami, Fla., last February 3 to Wayne Sabin, Portland (Ore.) Davis cup team prospect.

"We didn't want the marriage known because we were afraid it might hamper Wayne's chances of making the Davis cup team," Mrs. Sabin said Saturday. "But the eastern officials found it out anyway."

FELLER BLANKS WHITE SOX, 2-0, FOR 17TH WIN

Yanks and A's Divide Two; Browns Whip Tigers.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Bob Feller shut out the Chicago White Sox, 2 to 0, in the first game of a double-header yesterday to chalk up his 17th victory of the season. The Indian star allowed only three scattered hits. Ted Lyons, veteran Chicago hurler, was forced to leave the game in the fifth when he twisted his ankle.

The White Sox won the second game, 3 to 0.

A barrage of runs in almost every inning gave the New York Yankees a 21 to 0 victory over the Athletics in the second game of a double-header after the Yanks dropped the first 12 to 9. The second game was called in the eighth because of Pennsylvania's curfew law.

The St. Louis Browns scored seven runs in the eighth inning to take the third and final game of the series from the Detroit Tigers, 11 to 7. The Browns clubbed four Detroit pitchers for 17 hits including a home run by Chet Laabs, former Tiger.

The Washington Senators, after dropping the first game of a double bill to Boston by a 9 to 1 score, showed a reversal of hitting form in the nightcap and defeated the Red Sox, 6 to 3. The Senators combed five Boston hiters for 15 hits in the second game while being held for seven safeties in the opener.

INDIANS 2-0; CHISOX 0-3.

SKULLS BATTLE AT NEW ARENA

Skullduggery, or whatever schemes it is skulls resort to in wrestling matches, will be plentifully displayed tonight when the Original Skull meets an imposter also posing as the Skull in the main bout as the new Red Rock arena offers its first wrestling program.

The match will have no time limit, no disqualifications will be recognized, and a draw will not be allowed, thus assuring wrestling fans that one of the masked grapplers will have to make known his identity. With the whole purse going to the winner, a great match is in the offing.

Young Londos, skillful Atlanta wrestler, takes on Honey Boy Hackney in the one-hour semi-final match. Both are clean, scientific matmen.

Tonight's matches are exclusively for white fans. The preliminary is scheduled to start at 8:30.

Motorcycle Races Set at 3 P. M. Today

Feature 25-Mile Championship at Lakewood Will Be Staged at 6:30 O'Clock.

Postponed from Sunday due to the heavy rains, Lakewood's second annual motorcycle races will be held at 5 o'clock this afternoon on the mile track at Lakewood Park.

Today's program will start at 3 o'clock with the preliminary trial heats to determine pole positions in the seven events which follow.

The 25-mile southeastern championship, a feature on the program, will be run at 6:30 o'clock, and the entire program will be completed before dark.

It's the biggest mortocycle race program ever staged in the southeast and more than 50 of the country's outstanding riders are here to contest the $600 prize money, second largest prize list of the year.

Woodsie Sastonguay, holder of the 25-mile record; Ed Kretz, Pomona, Cal., the country's most popular rider last year and holder of the 10-mile championship for mile tracks; Lester Hillbish, Reading, Pa., who recently set new three, five and 10-mile records for half-mile tracks; and Bob Beatty, the 1937 Class A national champion, head the group of outstanding riders competing for the southeastern and Lakewood championships this afternoon.

The heavy rains Sunday did far more good than harm to the track. In fact, the track should be much faster than ordinary, since there has been but little rain recently.

PIERS TO MEET COMER IN KENT

The word is slipping through wrestling circles that among the young grapplers most likely to snatch the heavyweight crown in the next year or so is Harry Kent, a handsome and beautifully proportioned lad from Minnesota.

Kent is due to meet the sensational Henry Piers at Warren Field tomorrow night and fans are likely to see quite a battle. Kent recently held Dory Roche to a draw here and he has been improving with each match. Piers will have to be having one of his best nights to handle the former Minnesota football star. Piers stole the show last week from Dick Raines and Cowboy Luttrell. He is right now at his peak.

Heinie Olsen and Johnny Marrs, who staged a spirited scientific draw last week in the 30-minute opener, are being brought back by popular demand for the hour semi-final.

Gabe Zeller and Joe Millich, a couple of classy newcomers, meet in the first event at 8:30.

Popular prices are featured.

RED SOX OPTION WOODROW RICH

BOSTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox sent Pitcher Woodrow Rich to Louisville, the Sox farm club in the American association, tonight, and recalled Charlie Wagner and Wilfred Le Febvre, also pitchers, from the same club.

The Sox made their move at a time when only three of their pitchers had gone the regulation nine innings in the last 23 games. Five Boston hurlers had gone the regulation nine innings in the last 23 games. Five Boston hurlers had gone to the mound in a futile attempt to stop the Washington Senators in the second game of a double-header today.

Rich, who started out this season like a prize pitching find, hurt his arm before mid-season and since then has shown little effectiveness.

Boxing Show Set Tonight At Warren's

Stars of Brown-Yarosz Card in Action; Blalock Turns Pro.

Several of the boxers whose performances drew loud applause from the great throng which witnessed the Pen Brown-Teddy Yarosz card at the ball park last Wednesday night will be seen in action when the weekly club fights are staged tonight at Warren Athletic Field.

Bob Michaels, young Atlanta heavyweight who scored a technical kayo over Paul Gentle Wednesday night, will serve as the first professional opponent of Jack Blalock, winner of the recent amateur tournament at Lakewood Park. Blalock, regarded as a promising lad, has picked a stiff assignment for his debut in the money ranks.

Joe Apperson and Floyd Shiflett are other principals of the Brown-Yarosz show who will see action. Apperson, the Dalton, Ga., middleweight, meets Kid Tommy, of Bolton. Shiflett, of Dalton, a lightweight with a heavyweight's punch, battles Bruce Dean, Atlanta.

All bouts are scheduled for six rounds. And the boys keep the air filled with leather. Starting time is 8:30.

The prices are perhaps the lowest ever offered here for professional boxing.

MANAGERS MEET.

The Walco league managers will meet Monday night for final registrations and to make final plans for the season.

TARZAN AND THE FIRES OF TOHR No. 145

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Had Tarzan been an ordinary man, he would have been dismayed. The whole Tohrian army, far outnumbering his own ill-equipped forces, was drawn up to defend the palace. There was only one chance in fifty of victory. Without hesitation, Tarzan resolved to take it.

"We'll circle through the side streets and come upon them suddenly," Tarzan announced. But at that moment he noticed a commotion on the city walls back of the palace. Then a section of the Tohrian army detached itself from the main body and moved toward the walls.

"Perhaps it is a trick to draw us on attack, then trap us," Tarzan said slowly, "or it may be——." Without finishing his sentence, the ape-man turned to Kailuk. "Follow them. Find out what's going on." Kailuk vanished, but in a few minutes he returned excitedly.

"The Rathorians—attacking!" he cried. Perry bubbled with glee. "Good old D'Arnot and Ukah! They came through! They've brought the Rathorians! We're saved!" Tarzan shook his head gravely. "They will be of no value unless we can open the gates to them!"

Russell Drafts New Plan For Increasing Farm Prices

Georgia Senator To Present 'Certificate' Program at Next Session.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—A new farm price boosting scheme, incorporating the domestic allotment idea and designed to be self-financing, will be presented to congress next session, perhaps with the blessing of Secretary Wallace.

The new program already has been drafted into bill form by Senator Russell, Democrat, Georgia, who calls it the "certificate plan." He said he would introduce it early in the next session, and, while there has been no public expression concerning it from Secretary Wallace, Agriculture Department experts aided Russell in drafting his measure.

The Georgia senator expressed confidence that the plan would be adopted eventually.

"Something Must Be Done."

"I don't know whether it will be in the next session or not," he said, "but somethin has to be done because the farmers are not getting parity prices in spite of the large appropriations that have been made."

Congress appropriated $1,194,498,000 for the Agriculture Department at the last session, including $773,000,000 in payments for farmers. In this latter amount was $225,000,000 for parity payments not in the President's budget, and Mr. Roosevelt expressed disapproval of congressional failure to provide taxes to meet this additional outlay. Processing taxes were regarded as about the only practical way to raise the money, but congressional sentiment ran against them.

The certificate plan, however, would not involve the levying of a direct processing tax. In fact, no money would pass through the federal treasury, obviating the necessity of large appropriations for farm benefits and equally large tax collections.

How Plan Works.

Here is how it would work, as explained by Russell:

The secretary of agriculture would be empowered to issue to a grower certificates covering his proportion of a normal domestic crop. In the case of cotton, for instance, the grower who cultivated 10 acres and got 200 pounds of cotton to an acre on an average over the previous five-year period, would get certificates for the part of his 2,000 pounds of cotton that ordinarily was sold domestically.

This would be determined on a domestic acreage allotment basis—the number of acres calculated to produce the domestically-consumed crop.

When the domestic cotton buyer sought to purchase this farmer's cotton, he would pay the market price for it. But he could not buy it without buying the farmer's certificates, which would be worth the difference between the market price and the parity price which had been fixed by congress or some other agency.

Can Be Sold in Pool.

Thus if the market price were 10 cents a pound and parity had been determined at 15 cents, the price of the certificates would be 5 cents a pound.

For practical purposes, Russell explained, the farmer could sell his certificates in a pool to be managed by the Department of Agriculture, as the check-up would be made on the manufacturer when he attempted to sell cotton goods. He would be required to produce certificates to cover the cotton in those goods.

If the farmer elected to grow more cotton than his domestic allotment, he would have to take his chances on the world market price on the surplus. There would be no certificates involved in export sales, but imports would require certificates.

Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, who is supporting the certificate plan for wheat, said he thought it offered the best possible method of paring down expanding farm appropriations and at the same time giving the farmers a fair price for their products.

8 JAILED IN RAIDS; WHISKY IS SEIZED

13 1-2 Cases of Liquor Confiscated at Lookout Inn and at Ivy Hotel.

Two week-end whisky raids by city detectives netted approximately 13 1-2 cases of tax-paid whisky, police reported last night.

Detectives raided the Lookout Inn at 1069 Lee street, confiscating three and one-half cases of liquor and making eight arrests. R. E. Hawkins, 32, of 1010 White street, manager, was charged with operating a business without a license and the illegal sale of whisky on Sunday. Detectives J. D. Preston and J. M. Jackson said P. E. Mobley, East Point, assistant manager, was held on the charge of disorderly conduct—whisky. Six others, three white and three negro employes of the inn, were arrested on charges of being occupants of a dive.

At the Ivy Street hotel, 125 Ivy street, Detectives C. D. Henshaw, H. R. McCurley, J. D. Corley and C. R. Allen confiscated approximately 10 cases of tax-paid whisky. No arrests were made.

DOWNPOUR IN CITY TOTALS .64 INCHES

Cloudiness and Showers To Follow Coolest Day Since July 10.

A torrential downpour in Atlanta yesterday, a result of the tropical storm over the Gulf of Mexico, accounted for .64 inches of the city's total .89 inches of rainfall for the month of August, the United States Weather Bureau reported.

Yesterday was also the coolest day Atlanta has had since July 10, with temperatures varying only 5 degrees, from 73 to 78.

Weather forecast for today is mostly cloudy with scattered showers throughout the day and temperatures of 68 to 88 degrees.

HOOVER LAYS DEATH TO PAROLE SYSTEM

Blames Leniency to Convicted Rapist for Slaying of Frances Dunn.

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 13.—(AP)—Chief G-Man J. Edgar Hoover joined today in blaming the nation's parole system for the abduction of two Miami high school girls and the slaying of one.

In a telegram to L. K. Nicholas Jr., president of the Miami Chamber of Commerce, Hoover said:

"I concur most heartily in your righteous feeling of indignation over the atrocious crime.

"I can see no excuse as to why an individual previously convicted for rape and sentenced to serve a prison term up to 15 years should be released on parole after serving less than four years of his sentence, and then subsequently to be placed on probation after committing another offense."

Charles Jefferson, 34, confessed to officers that he abducted Jean Bolton and Frances Dunn with promises he could help them to theatrical careers, then killed Miss Dunn.

Hoover said that for his criticism of parole systems he had been "the object of scorn and vitriolic criticism on the part of certain groups of professional sob sisters who place the comfort and pleasures of the criminal above the safety and happiness of law-abiding citizens and protection of the public."

ARCHBISHOP DENIES ANY LINK TO HOT OIL

U. S. Attorney General's Aide Says Prelate Not Being Investigated.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 13.—(AP) Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel, of New Orleans, tonight said in a formal statement that he was not involved in any "hot oil operations" in Louisiana and gave assurances he and members of the Catholic clergy here were "in no way involved in the political crisis."

Assistant Attorney General O. John Rogge, in charge of the federal inquiry here, later said the archbishop was not being investigated by federal authorities, and that he had heard of nothing involving the prelate, who is one of the church's 27 highest officials in the United States, and who was recently prominently mentioned as a successor to the late Patrick Cardinal Hayes, of New York.

"I state unequivolcally that I have at no time been even offered, much less accepted a personal gift, movable or immovable, from any official of the state, city or any other subdivision of the state of Louisiana," the archbishop said.

The archbishop said he was forced to issue his statement because of widespread gossip linking the church and himself with the present political scandals here which had reached the point demanding "a word of definite denial."

Softball Results

The teams competing in the Greater Atlanta Softball Association's city tournament are rapidly approaching the finals. Under the rules of the state softball program only the two Atlanta teams that reach the finals of the city tournament have the privilege of entering the state tournament. Thus the next few games are of the utmost importance to each and every team that is lucky enough to have survived this past week of play.

Softball fans will have plenty of "major league" softball for the next few games as the teams that are left are the "cream of the crop!" On Tuesday night the fast Brooks-Zukor team, headed by their pitching ace, Sambo Elliott, ties up in a heated imbroglio with Captain Neal Ellis' 1938 state champs at Grady field at 8 p. m. The winner will be in the state tournament while the loser must drop back into the loser's bracket and meet the winner of that bracket to determine the other team that will be eligible to represent Atlanta in the state tournament which will be played here beginning the week of August 21.

The girls' city softball tournament will get under way Monday night with four get under way tonight with four teams entered. The Sims Coal team will meet the General Shoe outfit at Grady field and National Biscuit will play the Fair Clothing team at Piedmont Park tonight.

The daily schedule will appear in the local newspapers.

DAWSON PICKS CRIMSON TIDE TO TAKE CROWN

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 13.—(AP) Head Coach Lowell "Red" Dawson of Tulane joined the annual diplomatic by-play of the southeastern conference Saturday by picking Alabama to finish on top in the coming southeastern conference football season.

Since Coach Bob Neyland, of Tennessee also has chosen Alabama and Coach Frank Thomas, of Alabama, has picked Tennessee and Tulane, Dawson's selections fall right in line with the accepted policy of putting one's apparently strongest opponents on the spot.

He futher conformed to tradition by low-rating his own team:

"Us for the championship? Why, that's a joke. We don't figure to be nearly as strong as these other teams."

His pitiful squad starts practice Sept. 1, with 24 letter men returning, the largest number in Tulane history; a bunch of sophomores who last year formed the best froshman team the school has ever had; and a tentative first line averaging 206 pounds.

Dawson said today that everybody had got past eligibility danger and 56 experienced players, an unusually large number for Tulane, would report Sept. 1.

Asked if such prospects did not belie his gloom, Dawson moaned:

"Whew, we have a tough schedule this year. Not many breathers to look forward to. From Clemson to L. S. U. (first and last games on the schedule) it's nothing but Tigers, Rams, Lions and Red Elephants. What a nightmare!"

VOLS SIGN RAGER.

6 Local Players Enter Final Round for Appalachian Pair Title.
